THE RACES.

Pearl Jennings Carries Off the Hotel Stakes.

Checkmate Wins the First Race and Startle the Selling Race.

The success of racing week seems to be assured after the showing of the last two days. All the events have been extremely successful, the programme has been faithfully carried out and public enthusiasm seems to have been aroused as it never was before.

In yesterday's races the favorites got the first fall, the victories of Gilmore and Little Phil being thunder-claps in a clear sky, although the tip on the latter was out among the betting men on the track early yesterday afternoon. The interest to-day will be well sustained, especially as the sport offered is the finest of the week. There are no less than six races on the programme for this afternoon, and each one of them has some special feature of interest. In the first race, the club purse for all ages, there are two entries, Checkmate and Joseo. Although the former carries 12 pounds more than Joseo, yet the old horse's performances have been so grand this season that nobody will bet anything against him and the race is acknowledged to be his without a doubt. The desire to see Checkmate, however, is very great, and his victories at Louisville, coupled with the fact that this is his first appearance during this meeting, make the race interesting.

The second race, the hotel stakes for 3-year-old fillies, a mile and a quarter, is the event of the day. Out of 36 entries 7 will come to the post, and they are so closely matched that nobody can pick the winner. Pearl, Jennings and Katie Creel are the favorites in the betting in the order named, but this ought not to fool anybody.

Early last night Katie Creel was selling even against the whole field. Mr. S. R. Watts, the book-maker from Louisville, has so fixed his sheet that he stands to loose $12,000 if Katie gets first across the wire. Last night he openly bought Pearl Jennings for first choice a couple of times, and the men who were watching the "tips" thought Watts knew what he was about. Jennings immediately became a rousing favorite, going off like hot cakes. Watts did know what he was about. By making Jennings a favorite he got a chance to buy Katie Creel at small figures, in a quiet way.

In this manner he is managing to hedge out and save himself on a considerable portion of the $12,000 laid against Katie Creel, but it took the buyers a long time to see it. The race will be a hot one from start to finish, and four out of the six starters are all looked on as good for a place.

The steeplechase handicap, the fifth race to-day is the great novelty. Three horses have entered, and it is sure to be run. The course is 2¼ miles and is said by the steeplechasers to be as good as any in the country. The latter object to the length of the jumps in many instances. The distances are something terrible and there are sure to be several tumbles, with the usual duckings at the water jumps and the other exciting incidents of a steeplechase. The novelty is looked forward to with great interest. Taken all together, to-day's programme is as interesting as could be gotten up, and the indications at noon are that it will draw a large crowd.

At the Track.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RACE TRACK, ST. LOUIS, June 7.—At 3 o'clock a small crowd was in attendance. The field was nearly empty, but the stand was well filled. Weather and track very fine. Betting lively. Horses not yet called, the usual delay in making a start ensuing. Judges Lewis A. Clarke of Louisville, J. B. Culleys, John W. Hoey. Starters and timers same as yesterday. The crowd still coming in promises to be larger than yesterday.

First Race.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RACE TRACK, June 7.—The first race was a club purse, $300, for all ages, to carry 100 pounds; mares and geldings allowed 3 pounds; the winner of one race since January 1, 1882, of the value of $1,000, to carry 7 pounds extra; of two such races, 12 pounds extra; beaten maiden allowed 10 pounds; one mile and three-quarters.

Jas. T. Williams' br. g. Checkmate, aged, by Glen Athol-Full Cry, 100 pounds.

John Earhardt's g. g. Joseo, aged 5, by Billet-Violet, 97 pounds.

Checkmate is looked upon as a sure winner and nobody is betting against him at the track.

Both horses started, Joseo led off and retained the lead until the three-quarter pole, when Checkmate passed her and remained ahead the remainder of the race, passing under the string a very easy winner. Time, 3:09¾.

The Second Race.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RACE TRACK, June 7.—The second race was the Hotel Stakes, for 3-year old fillies; $50 entrance, h. f., with $600 added, of which $100 to second; one mile and a quarter.

Of thirty-five subscribers there were seven starters, as follows:

Ed. Corrigan's b. f. Pearl Jennings, by Leamington-Mary Howard.

A. and J. M. Simpson's b. f. Arno, by King Alfonso-Lady Barry.

Henry Johnson's b. f. Katie Creel, by King Alfonso-Marguerite.

John G. McFadden's ch. f. Fiona, by Waverly-Nora Creina.

Milton Young's b. f. Black Maria, by imp. Bonnie Scotland-Planchette.

Applegate Bros.' ch. f. Lizzie McWhirter, by Inquirer-Ontario.

W. Cottrill's b. f. Ruth, by imp. Buckden-Bannerette.

Pearl Jennings and Katie Creel were made favorites by the book-makers, to save themselves, but the race before the start was considered very doubtful. This is the heavy betting race of the day.

Pool—Katie Creel, $105; Pearl Jennings, $100; Black Maria, $80; McWhirter, $40; field, $10.

A splendid start was made, Pearl Jennings at the pole. Passing the wire Jennings still in front, Katie Creel just up, and the rest close in a bunch. When the mile was run the same positions were preserved, but McWhirter running up close. Round the turn Katie Creel moved up, but Pearl Jennings had no trouble in keeping the lead. Coming to the wire Jennings let out a link first and won by two lengths, the other riders whipping like furies; McWhirter second, Black Maria third; Katie Creel fourth; the rest close up. Time 2:12¾.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

Starters—Pearl Jennings, 105 pounds (Cross).
Arno, 105 pounds (Kiely).
Katie Creel, 105 pounds (Stovall).
Fiona, 105 pounds (A. Allen).
Black Maria, 105 pounds (Walker).
Lizzie McWhirter, 108 pounds (Murphy.)
Ruth, 105 pounds (Grobs).

An excellent start was made at the second attempt. The first moved off like a pistoon. Pearl Jennings and Katie Creel made the running head and head for the mile, then Katie Creel fell away behind and Pearl Jennings came on and won by three lengths; Lizzie McWhirter second, Black Maria third, Katie Creel fourth, Fiona fifth, Ruth sixth, Arno last. Time, 2:12¾. French pools paid $1,670. Post odds 2 to 1 against winner.

Third Race.

Special to the Post Dispatch.

RACE TRACK, June 7.—The third race was a selling race, purse $300, of which $50 to the second; horses entered to be sold for $1,500 to carry full weights; $750 allowed 5 pounds, $500 allowed 10 pounds, $300 14 pounds; winner to be sold after the race, and one-half of the surplus given to second horse, balance to the association; mile heats.

Hayden & Barry's c. g. Pathfinder, age 3 years, by Pat Malloy-Amy Farley (94 pounds).

J. Carter & Co.'s b. h. John Happy, age 5 years, by Bonnie Scotland-Kathleen (111 pounds).

O. E. Lefevre's blk. s. Startle, 10 years, by West Roxbury-Nora Worth (111 pounds).

J. T. Williams' br. g. Amazon, age 5 years, by Asteroid-Nun Morgan (104 pounds).

Applegate & Bros'. b. m. Mattie Rapture, by Imported Rapture-Lizzie Bellfield (102 pounds).

Happy was the favorite before the race, with Amazon, Rapture, Pathfinder and Startle following in the order named.

FIRST HEAT.

Just before the heat Amazon became favorite. Pools—Amazon, $300; Happy, $275; Rapture, $150; field, $55. Pathfinder, at the pole, took the lead and kept it for three-fourths of a mile; Rapture second, Startle third and Happy and Amazon back together. At the turn into the stretch Rapture and Amazon moved up, the former displaying unexpected speed. Though Walker pushed Amazon he could not get there and Rapture won by two lengths, Amazon second, Pathfinder third, Startle fourth and Happy, who was reserved for the next heat, last. Time, 1:44¼. The closest heat of the week and the prettiest.

SECOND HEAT POOLS.

Pools—Rapture $350; field $275. At the start Rapture slightly bewind, and all the others got off in a bunch. The favorite never caught up and after a hard race Startle won the heat. Amazon second, John Happy third, Rapture fourth, and Pathfinder a bad fifth. Time, 1:45¾.

THIRD HEAT.

Pools—Startle, $1,050; Rapture, $205. Startle won heat and race.

To-Morrow's Programme.

First Race—Handicap for all ages; purse, $250, of which $50 to second. Weights to be announced at the track to-day and acceptances to be made through the entry-box this evening at the close of last race. Distance, one mile and a furlong. Closed with 36 entries.

Second race—Jockey Club stakes for 2-year-olds, $50 entrance, h. f., with $500 added, of which $100 to second; distance one mile; 27 entries.

Third race—Club purse, $350, for all ages; $300 to first and $50 to second; heats, one mile and a furlong.

Fourth race—Extra event; purse of $250, of which $50 to second; dash of one mile for 3-year-olds that have started and not won since April 1, 1882; weights and declarations not yet announced.

Another extra event will probably be arranged to-night.

Track Talk.

A. R. Taylor is very fond of racing, and has not missed a day yet.

Sam Ecker thinks that the six races to-day ought to please the worst kicker ever known.

The wants of the members of the press are carefully looked after by Sam Ecker and Lew Clarke.

The field was well filled with carriages carrying showy and doubtful loads of passengers yesterday.

A "tip" is a thing that is hard to get, expensive when you get it, and generally not worth the money paid for it.

It is officially stated that there were more people on the grounds Monday than ever before in the history of the association.

Chief Sexton gets out a while every day and has been detected nodding and winking at Bob Cathcart in the pool corner more than once.

Miss Cora Baker took a quiet peep at the races yesterday, but did not back her judgment for as many pairs of glooves as during last season.

A couple of the judges are not exactly what might be called old turfmen and are glad to have the assistance of Col. McDaniels when they can get it.

Col. Lewis A. Clarke, President of the Louisville Jockey Club, arrived in town to-day and is a prominent figure on the quarter stretch this afternoon.

Col. Dave Armstrong knew how all the races would go yesterday, and it was only his rooted antipathy to betting which saved the book-makers from utter ruin.

Wayman McCreery was about the only member of the West End Club who could be induced to leave his base veil in the Tally-ho when he paid a visit to the club rooms on the betting quarter.

The Herdics leave the various hotels, the Restaurant de Paris and other places promptly at 1 o'clock each day for the races, and are a very convenient, quick and popular means of conveyance.

Secretary Lew Clarke has no assistant this year and is terribly rushed in the business, but he manages everything perfectly nevertheless, and in addition finds plenty of time to be courteous and accommodating to everybody.

The race for gentlemen riders, which was so popular and so full of ludicrous falls some years ago, is not likely to be resurrected. The "young bloods" soured on the first experience and do not want to try it over again.

Ladies' Baptist Society.

The quarterly meeting of the Ladies' Baptist Foreign Missionary Society was held in the chapel of the Third Baptist Church this afternoon. A number of ladies from the different Baptist Churches were present. The meeting was opened with a hymn, followed by Scripture reading. The reports from the secretary, treasurer, State secretary, Mission Band, the church circles and the young ladies were then read. After the map exercises the audience were entertained with readings by the Misses Schofield, Joy and Stillwell. The meeting was closed with a duet by the Misses Trevor.

THE PRODIGAL'S RETURN.

How Johnny Curtis Came Marching Home Alone.

He Deserted Mrs. Dixon in San Antonio.

The End of the Dixon-Curtis Elopement —Sorrowful Story of a Woman's Fall.

Some two months since, when Mrs. Jennie Dixon, of Channing avenue, eloped with her nineteen-year-old lover, Johnny Curtis, the whole town wondered. This new story of Abelard and Heloise was soon upon every tongue, and the gossips found plenty of food in telling each other how the pretty young matron and her Adonis loved each other before and after their brilliant disappearance from the town. It will be remembered that Mrs. Jennie Dixon was the daughter of Mr. Ladd, a well known merchant of the city, a handsome woman, young and rather brilliant in her manner. She was a general favorite in her circle, and her elopement was a veritable shock to the quiet neighborhood in which she lived. One rainy afternoon she quietly kissed her children good-by and went off with John Curtis, the son of T. C. Curtis, the bucket-shop keeper under the Merchants' Exchange; making the round of Chicago, Indianapolis, Louisville and so on into Texas, their route being chronicled everywhere by the papers. Last night

"JOHNNY" CURTIS ARRIVED AT HOME,

leaving Mrs. Dixon at San Antonio, Texas, to get home the best way she could. He, for one, is heartily tired of his escapade, and the love which he thought was to have lasted forever for the pretty partner of his plight seems to have altogether evaporated. Of course his return to St. Louis has created almost as much of a sensation as his departure, and everybody in the neighborhood of Channing avenue and Olive is talking about the young Lothario and his romantic adventures. A Post-Dispatch reporter this morning went out to see the young gentleman and first discovered that his father was profoundly ignorant of his presence in the city. Although "Johnny" had arrived in the city last night, he did not go home, preferring to see his mother and finding out how the land lay before going through the interview which he expected with his father. At the house it was stated that

THE PRODIGAL HAD RETURNED

but that he was feeling very sick and could not see any reporter. The journalistic blandishments were exerted to their utmost, but "Johnny" could not be moved. A friend with whom he had industriously circulated the flowing bowl on the night before. Mr. Dingman, of the Tattershall stables on Locust street, was found, and he stated that Johnny had come home evidently very tired of his trip. He was not looking well, and appeared to be very blue and despondent.

"Where is Mrs. Dixon?"

"Well, Johnny tried to make me believe that she was in St. Louis too, but I don't think she is."

"Have they separated?"

"Oh yes. He said enough to make me understand that."

Another friend of the Curtis family was found, who declined to permit his name to be printed, and he said that Mr. F. C. Curtis had been trying to bring about a separation between his son and Mrs. Dixon for the last three weeks.

THE ELOPING COUPLE

were living at San Antonio, and Mrs. Curtis' elder brother went down there and reasoned with the lovers. Johnny was getting very sick of the trip anyhow and it was not very difficult to make him listen to reason. Mrs. Dixon, however, was not so easily satisfied. She seems to be the victim of a singular infatuation for her boy lover, and when he pleaded upon a separation she was almost driven frantic, and the scene, from all accounts, must have been a very painful one. Young Curtis, however, appears to be a youth of remarkable fortitude, and he

BORE THE PARTING MUCH MORE STOICALLY,

According to agreement, he came home to his father's house and a home was found for Mrs. Dixon in a farm-house about seven miles out of San Antonio, where she will remain for the present.

Mr. Curtis' friends here will make a strong effort to secure a reconciliation between Mrs. Dixon and her parents, and they are very hopeful as to the result. Her husband has already begun suit for divorce and it is not considered probable that he can be induced to forgive the erring lady. The reporter called at the residence of Mr. Ladd, 3320 Locust street, and found the family very reticent as to their intentions. It can be depended upon, however, that both father and mother are wild to see their daughter back safely under their roof again. Mrs. Ladd is looking very badly, and her daughter's escapade has made her prematurely aged; still she has evidently nothing but forgiveness for the fugitive. Friends of the Curtis family are extremely anxious to prevent any collision between the young Lothario and any of the young members of the Ladd family. Mrs. Dixon's brothers are said to have vowed vengeance against the betrayer of their sister, and many people can be found who know the gentlemen and who believe that their threats are not idle. Mr. F. C. Curtis evidently is excessively annoyed over the affair. He said that he was glad the boy was back and would be still happier if Mrs. Dixon had also returned to her father. He admitted that she was in San Antonio, and said that he hoped her family would speedily make the best of a bad business and take her home. Further developments are to be expected.

CITY HALL NOTES.

Twenty burial certificates were issued this morning.

Receipts at the City Treasury to-day are: From Munson & Bascom, $35; from C. D. Greene, on account of Lafayette Park, $1,386 86; from the Inspector of Weights and Measures, $66; from the City Collector, $2,886 59; from Jacob Glaser, $20.

Mayor Ewing has set the following date for hearing remonstrances against ordinances now in his hands awaiting approval: Thursday, June 8, 10 a. m., ordinance relative to construction of sewers on Pestalozzi street, Sewer District No. 1; same date, 11 o'clock a. m., ordinance authorizing a lease of a portion of the wharf to the Union Steam Mills Company; Friday, June 9, 10 o'clock a. m., ordinance authorizing Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railroad to lay tracks on Main street, from North Market to Bates streets; same date, 11 o'clock a. m., ordinance relative to the proposed switch of Factors' and Brokers' Cotton Compress Company on Lesperance street. Parties in interest are invited to be present at the hours mentioned.

Josephine Holland, an abandoned m[illegible] waif with a history, was committed t[illegible] House of Refuge by Mayor Ewing this m[illegible] ing. Although only five years of age, Josephine has seen probably as much of the bad side of human nature as is usually allotted to most people. She was born in Dakota Territory only five years ago. Her father is a sable African named Holland and her mother a worthless Irishwoman who now goes by the name of Scanlon. The African abandoned his mistress and child about two years ago, and the woman then turned the latter over to her own mother, who is, if possible, a worse specimen of depraved womankind than her daughter. The Scanlon woman then took up with a white soldier named Scanlon, to whom she is said to be married, and with whom she is now living at one of the military stations in New Mexico. The grandmother kept the child with her, and whenever she could secure employment they both managed to get enough to keep body and soul together. The last situation the old woman was lucky enough to obtain was with a respectable lady named Boyle living on Twelfth and Chouteau avenue. Mrs. Boyle was not able, however, to keep the old woman long about her premises, her habits being a scandal to the neighborhood. She finally turned her adrift, but kept the child. This morning Josephine was brought before the Mayor and placed as has been stated in the House of Refuge. The little girl is very bright and good-humored in appearance, and it is possible that with regular meals and cleanly clothing she may yet develop, in spite of her early misfortunes, into a fine, intelligent woman.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

Several Weddings Consummated To-day—The Brides and Grooms.

A wedding occurred this morning at the Franciscan Church, in South St. Louis. The groom was Mr. John J. Mauntel, of the firm of Mauntel, Borgiss & Co., flour merchants, and the bride was Miss Rita Miltenberger, the daughter of Eugene Miltenberger, recently deceased. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a large assembly, and numerous congratulations were bestowed upon the couple. The bride was attired in white brocaded silk, trimmed with lace and orange blossoms. The groomsmen were: Messrs. F. X. McCabe and Gerald Griffin, and the bridesmaids Miss Alice Miltenberger and Miss Darst. After the wedding an elaborate banquet was served and a reception held at the residence of the late Mr. Miltenberger, where throngs of invited guests appeared to honor and grace the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Mauntel will leave for the East this evening to visit the seaside resorts.

Mr. Bart Berthold, a well-known and popular young official in the Water Department and a near relative to Mayor Ewing, will be married at 8 o'clock this evening to Miss Viola L. Ripley, of the South end. The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Father Thomas O'Reilley, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Lucas and Jefferson avenues, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mr. Thomas Brooks, corner of Second Carondelet avenue and Russell street.

This afternoon, at 5 o'clock, Mr. Harry W. Huthsing will be married to Miss Hattie B. Warren, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Warren, the ceremony occurring at the Pickwick flat, by Rev. Father Walsh. Immediately after the wedding a reception will be given at the residence of the bride's father, and at 7 o'clock the bride and groom will leave for Cincinnati, where they expect to remain several weeks.

THE POLICE CHANGES

Said to Have No Further Significance Than the Improvement of the Force.

This evening Chief Kennett leaves for Kentucky on an indefinite leave of absence granted by the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday. Capt. Huebler, who was recently transferred from the Third to the Fifth District has, been assigned to manage the department during Kennett's trip. The recent changes were thought to be significant, especially the transfer of Huebler, who is admittedly one of the best officers in the department. This looked like an interment wherein a popular officer and probable successor to the Chiefship was the corpse. Concerning the changes to-day a Police Commissioner said: "The changes of captains have no significance and are the result of the conclusion of the Board, which has had the subject under consideration for three months nearly. Mr. Kennett was granted a leave of absence because he had been sick for some time and is in need of rest. In this event Capt. Huebler takes the position of Chief. There were no other reasons for the change. If they do no good they can do no harm."

The Cornyn Monument.

The arrangements for the unveiling of the monument which has been erected in Calvary Cemetery to the memory of the late Dr. Cornyn are all completed. The ceremonies, which take place at the cemetery on next Saturday afternoon, will be of an imposing character. A choir of priests, led by Rev. Father D. S. Phelan, and Prof. Gilsinn's choir will be in attendance. Mr. Charles Pope will recite O'Hara's fine poem "The Bivouac of the Dead," and Dr. P. S. O'Reilly will deliver an appropriate address. The orator of the day will be Peter L. Foy.

The statue will be unveiled by Miss Jessie Harrison, daughter of the late Capt. Harrison. A very large concourse of people is expected to be present.

DISASTROUS FIRE.

Fifteen Houses Destroyed—Child Burned to Death.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, June 7.—This morning at 9 o'clock a disastrous fire broke out on Brown street in a frame dwelling, and is rapidly spreading and still burning. Fifteen houses are already destroyed. The families are homeless, all their goods being burned. The residents fled for their lives. Several were badly injured. One child was burned to death. The fire is spreading over the whole block, and the loss will be very heavy.

THE LOSS.

CINCINNATI, June 7.—Twenty frame dwellings, occupied by families on Brown and Ravine streets, up Mill Creek Valley, burned this forenoon. One child was burned to death. Twenty-five families are homeless and all their effects in ashes. The loss is not less than $25,000.

The Boy Murderer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PERHAM, MINN., June 7. — John Tibbetts, the fifteen-year-old boy whose head was so turned by reading trashy periodicals that he murdered two citizens of this place and then started for Montana to join the cowboys, was brought back to this place this morning. He confesses the crime in part by saying he was not alone in the affair.

The Ross-Hanlan Match.

TORONTO, June 7.—Wallace Ross passed through to-day on his way to Winnipeg. An addition of $500 was deposited for the race with Hanlon. Ross would give no definite information as to the postponement of the race owing to Hanlan's illness, but said he would do the right thing.

Colorado Railway Pool.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, COL., June 7.—Numerous consultations have been held here with a view to induce the Burlington road to join the Union Pacific and Denver and Rio Grande roads in pooling the Colorado business. It is believed by many that the efforts will be successful.

WASHINGTON.

Ex-Gov. Phelps Nominated Tariff Commissioner.

The Star Route Jury—The Deficiency Bill.

Congressional Proceedings—Committees —Capitol Gossip—Political News.

Capitol Chatter.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—Ex-Delegate Cannon, of Utah, still lingers here looking after his personal interests. He says Hon. A. S. Paddock, of Nebraska, is likely to be our Utah Commissioner.

Phœbe Couzins is here renewing the struggle for membership of the commission for herself. She thinks her prospects good.

It is said that Gen. Beale, Minister to Austria under Grant, will be a candidate for Congress in the Fifth Maryland District.

J. J. Woodward, President of the National Grange, is being urged for membership of the Tariff Commission.

Another bond call will soon be made. But thirty-one millions of six per cents are now outstanding and all will be called in by August.

The Secretary of the Treasury is still hopeful of getting at the bottom of the counterfeiting cases, though somewhat disappointed at getting nothing from Brockway. He is determined to give no quarter to any of the party.

A new industry is reported from South Carolina in the building of five steamers at Charleston. Further evidence of industry in the South is found in the increase of the number of spindles in cotton factories by nearly 400,000 the present year.

The Star Route Jury.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Serious charges are made regarding the manner in which the Star Route jury was impaneled. Marshal Henry admits in the letter to Brewster the manner of serving process and selecting members was irregular, the fault being with the Deputy. It is said that one juryman was picked up in the court room under circumstances which lead to the suspicion that it was done by collusion with the defense.

The Senate Committee is still on the bill extending bank charters, and propose amending it so that it will include the provisions of Sherman's refunding bill and permit the issue of gold certificates to be deposited by the banks as security for circulation, and it is doubtful if it gets through the Senate and House as amended this session.

Work on the deficiency bill in the House is progressing very slowly. Mr. Holman and other economists are fighting it at every step, and it looks as though the bill will take a whole week. Mr. Lowe, the Greenbacker who was given Wheeler's seat recently, says that charges of tissue ballots made in the House by Springer and Wheeler were entirely false, and that the so-called tissue ballots exhibited in the House were printed in Washington. He says the tissue ballots were not even mentioned in the committee.

Oliver, Jr., Pennsylvania; Austin M. Garland, Illinois; Jacob Ambler, Ohio; John S. Phelps, Missouri; Robert P. Porter, District of Columbia; John W. H. Underwood, Georgia; Duncan F. Kenner, Louisiana.

Patents.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—A patent has been issued from the Land Office of the Interior Department in favor of ex-President William Henry Harrison. The patent is for 160 acres of land in Southern Ohio, which Gen. Harrison purchased in 1805 under the old credit system. The interest on the investment already amounts to more than the principal sum invested.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The President nominated for Postmasters: Charles Helden, Jr., Alton, Ill.; Charles H. Williams, Lancaster, O., and John C. Williams, Crestline, O.

House.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Mr. Sparks apologized to Mr. Cox for his remarks made yesterday while the debate on the deficiency bill was going on, and Mr. Cox accepted the apology in the same kind feeling in which it had been tendered.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Mr. White desired to call up for present consideration the report of the Ways and Means Committee upon his resolution calling for information relative to the conduct of Commissioner Raum, recommending the passage of the Dunnell bill to extend the bonded period for distilled spirits.

The Speaker replied the report had not yet come from the printer, and Mr. White suggested it would not come until the whisky ring let it, but subsequently disclaimed any intention of reflecting on the Public Printer by that remark. The House then went into committee and resumed consideration of the general deficiency appropriation bill.

The Pocahontas Conflagration.

LITTLE ROCK, June 7.—Information is just received from Pocahontas that Tuesday's fire originated in Banner's grocery. The other buildings burned were Harrison's saloon and billiard hall, Lewis' meat warehouse, Lucas' drug store, Hammell's general store and warehouse, Hill, Fontaine & Co.'s store and warehouse, Collier's drug store, Mack & Co.'s grocery. The total loss is estimated at $60,000; insurance about $40,000, but the names of the companies were not learned.

Expelled From the Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The former officials of the New York Central were re-elected.

The Post says President Lawrence, of the Stock Exchange, to-day announced that the Governing Committee had found Wm. J. Hutchinson guilty of obvious fraud, and decreed his expulsion from the Stock Exchange by the requisite two-thirds vote. The charges against George H. Kennedy were to the effect that he allowed his partner, Hutchinson, to conduct the wrongful transactions specified with his knowledge and without protest, when it was within his power and clearly his duty to prevent them, and that his course in thus abetting wicked action was in its nature fraudulent. These charges and specifications against Kennedy were not sustained by the requisite vote of the governing committee.

THE GREAT NORTHWEST.

A Remarkable Instance of Development—Villard's Railroad.

GLENDIVE, M. T., June 7.—Henry Villard, President of the Northern Pacific Railroad, accompanied by his guests, who are managers of large joint stock banks in Germany, and several officials of the railroad, arrived here this morning. The special train consisted of Mr. Villard's private car, two directors' cars, dining car and baggage car. The party left Big Horn River at 8:12 o'clock last evening, after going the whole length of the track, which now is completed westward a distance of 853 miles from St. Paul. A very substantial bridge over Big Horn River will be completed in ten days and a tunnel through Big Horn Mountain, just beyond the stream, will be ready for use at the close of this week. Grading is done a distance of 170 miles west of Big Horn, only leaving six miles to finish in order to reach Benson's Landing, the proposed terminus of the Yellowstone division. Work is pushed on rapidly by Herman Clark, the contractor, who has 5,000 men at work on 2,200 miles. Villard expresses himself greatly pleased with the progress of the road and the general developments of the country. The wheat crops all along the line were never in a more prosperous condition, and there has been a wonderful growth in the towns and villages during the last year. Immigration to the great Northwest was never before so great, especially in the James River Valley and the fine wheat land of Kiddee county, west of the Missouri River. Hundreds of farms on the branches will contribute to its earnings. The gentlemen were greatly surprised at what they learned of the town of Billings, which is now seventy miles from the railroad track, but which will be reached by the cars early next month. From a census taken on the 3d inst. it was found there was a population of 490 souls living in eighty-seven houses and tents, the great difficulty being now in the lack of building material. The first number of a nicely-printed newspaper appeared Saturday last, and the founders of the town have already begun grading for a street railroad. This is a remarkable instance of rapid growth of a place which only five weeks ago was a primeval solitude.

"Coal costs money."

A bitter mocking smile, the smile of a demon that has been baffled in his unholy efforts to lure a soul to the uttermost depths of the inferno—played around the Grecian lips of Giroflé Mahaffy as these cruel words fell with cruel incisiveness from her lips. Over the backyard fence came the silvery gleams of the inconstant moon as she moved through the heavens in brilliant splendor and touched with gentle hand the moss-covered woodshed, and caused the dog, whose blood-curdling bay had fallen in such fearful cadences upon Rupert Hetherington's large West Side ears, to stand out, perfect in every line, against the pure mezzotints of the recently-painted doorsteps.

"You are jesting, sweetheart," murmured Rupert, pulling up his pants so they would not wrinkle at the knees, and seating himself beside the girl.

"Am I?" was the reply in cold Crystal-Lake accents, that seemed to Rupert to pierce his very vest. "If you really think so look out of the window."

Rupert obeyed. The moonlight streamed in on the room as he pushed aside the heavy pomegranate curtains, falling in mellow splendor on vase of malachite, and alabaster, on statue and bronze. Tazzas of jasper and lapis lazuli stood in recess and alcove crowded with flowers; curious trifles in gold and silver carving, in amber and mosaic, stood on table and etagere. A curiously-wrought sideboard that was new in the days of the Crusaders stood at his left. The fire glowed ruddily in the grate, the pure white flames leaping up the chimney as if in very glee. Amber-tinted sour mash, as Rupert well knew, lay concealed within the recesses of the sideboard. Outside the keen wind of December whistled shrill through the dead branches of the sturdy oaks, telling of the cold and suffering that was to come ere the soft breath of spring kissed the earth into life again. The bleak moorland black and dreary stretched away to the eastward, and across its sullen face the rabbits were running. Rupert saw all this at a glance. While engaged with the sombre thoughts that the scene induced, a hand fell lightly upon his shoulder. He turned and faced Girlie.

"And do you really mean what you say, sweetheart?" he asked.

"Yes," replied the girl, "there must be some kind of an understanding. I cannot bluff away all the days of my youth."

"Enough," said Rupert, "I will marry you."

"But when?" asked the girl.

Leaning over the beautiful girl he hissed in her ear the fateful words: "When the White Stockings win a game."

An Amateur Bridge Jumper.

From the New York Sun, 6th.

Shortly before noon yesterday a man of 30, in a rowboat, drew alongside the restaurant of George W. Riley, moored in the Harlem River about twenty yards this side of High Bridge. Leaving his coat and hat in the boat he entered the bar-room and drank a glass of beer. His gait indicated that he had been drinking before. He asked Mr. Riley how deep the water under the bridge was, and was told ten and thirteen feet. Then he broke forth with:

"Donaldson thinks he's a great man, don't he? Nobody else can jump off that bridge, can they? You think I can't jump off that bridge, don't you? But I can. You bet your boots I can, and I'm going to do it, and I'm going to do it now."

He unsteadily ascended the steps leading to the western end of the bridge. No one prevented him. It had occurred to nobody that he would jump. Several men in the restaurant watched him carelessly.

They saw him start across the bridge. When he arrived over the central arch he stopped, climbed over the iron railing and stood upon the granite projection. He looked down into the river for a few seconds, then turned and climbed back over the railing. Then he reappeared with his shoes and waistcoat off, and at once leaped out into the air, descending feet foremost. His arms were stretched above his head and his body was perfectly rigid until he was within about twenty feet of the water. Then he turned over flat and fell into the water on his stomach, with a resounding smack.

It was about half a minute before he rose to the surface. He was unconscious and would have been drowned but for Mr. Riley, who rescued him in a rowboat. He was carried to the eastern shore and recovered consciousness about fifteen minutes afterward. His clothing had been split down the front, but he was uninjured. Policeman Henry Schorskie arrested him for drunkenness and walked him to the One Hundred and Sixtieth Street Station, two and one-half miles away. He said he was John D. Brown, a butcher of 842 First avenue. At that address nothing is known of such a person. He was much elated over his feat and said he only wanted a chance to jump from the Brooklyn bridge. Only a few people were at High Bridge yesterday to see his exploit.

Pompadour satteens of lustrous cotton are made up for day dresses for the country. Rose grounds strewn with golden wheat, cream grounds with carnations, or maroon with fleur de lis are used for the panniered overdress, above a pleated skirt of plain colored satteen that is trimmed with yellow lace.

Hugh J. Hewett, Henry Villard, T. W. Pierce and W. H. Vanderbilt, railway presidents, ride in private cars that cost $20,000 each. The private cars of Messrs. Gould and Garrett are about as costly. Old Com. Vanderbilt's car is now an ordinary coach and runs into Chicago every afternoon. It would barely do for a smoker on most roads.

JUNE DAYS.

Oh, how delightful are the days—
The first bright days of rosy June!
Naught in the year deserves such praise
Under the gleaming of the moon;
To take a stroll along some brook
Where crystal waters bubble down;
To follow through some pleasant nook
Beneath a tree just out of town;
To ramble in the ambient woods
Where rocks and logs in moss are drest,
And climb the sapplings for the broods
Not old enough to fly the nest;
To list the chatter of a squirrel
Way up in some gigantic tree;
To have along a sweet, pure girl
As agile as a boy and free;
To climb beneath a gorge's wall—
To strip of boots and hose your feet,
And wade up to a waterfall
As near the spray as is discreet.
All this, all this we have in June!
And—yes—we have e'en more than this;
We have the glances of the moon
At Cupid teaching youths to kiss!

AMONG THE MORMONS.

Morals and Methods of the Men of Many Wives.

Salt Lake Letter to Chicago Times.

This city seems to have become the great point of attraction for the newspaper correspondents. The news-gatherers and sensational writers are fairly flocking hitherward. They come two or three a week, stay two or three days, and are gone, usually very much disgusted and almost universally disappointed. They have read some of the cheap books in Utah, and perhaps what some of their predecessors in the field have written, and therefore come with their lives in their hands, expecting to sojourn among a band of murderers and outlaws, who are aided and abetted in their work of butchery and outrage by renegade Indians. With some of these scribblers the coming to Utah is a mighty undertaking, fraught with greater danger than a voyage in search of the north pole. The other evening I met at the hotel a "special commissioner" from an Eastern journal that had been specially severe in its anti-Mormon utterances, and one of his first questions was as to the advisability of making himself known in view of the course his paper had pursued in dealing with the Mormon question. He thought that perhaps if it were understood that he was representing a newspaper that had been so harsh in its utterances against the Mormons, he might be "spotted" by the "Danites," and his friends would never know what became of him. It tells badly against the intelligence of the correspondent to even mistrust that there is occasion for fear among the Mormons. A murder is a rare occurrence in Utah, and of the very few that have been committed within the past fifteen years I can learn of but one where the slayer was a Mormon, and then the victim was also a member of the church, the affair arising in a drunken brawl. There has been but one execution for murder within the generation, save that of John D. Lee, the Mountain Meadows fiend.

The cause for the quite general disgust expressed by the newspaper chaps upon leaving is found in the fact that everything is discovered to be strikingly unlike what imagination had painted. Salt Lake, the headquarters of the Mormon Church, the chief town in the territory, and the scene of about all the noise, the rowdyism and lawlessness in Utah outside of the mining camps, is not so noisy as a river town in Illinois with five thousand inhabitants, and there is more lawlessness in a Kentucky village of one thousand people than in this city with its twenty-two thousand dwellers. With the exception of one block, which the Mormons derisively refer to as "Whisky street," the city has gone to bed by 9 o'clock p. m., and one hour later a person would not ordinarily meet four people in going the whole length of the saloon block, forty rods. On Sunday almost the stillness of a cemetery rests upon the town. The barber who shaves a customer on that day must do so with drawn blinds. The bootblack even does not ply his brush on the Sabbath except in hotel corridors and back alleys. The selling of a cocktail lays the seller liable to a fine of $100. All business is suspended save at the soda fountains and restaurants. The Mormons attend their religious meetings—afternoon and evening—and the Gentiles lounge about home or drive out of town for air and pleasure. To one who has been accustomed to the noise and bustle of mountain and far-western towns this universal drowsing is almost painful, and to the Eastern newspaper correspondents who expected all things were the reverse of what he finds them, Salt Lake City soon becomes the tamest city on the continent, furnishing less material for sensations and fewer incidents for lively letters. If this city is old-fashioned and sleepy the smaller towns and country places are infinitely more so. The other Sunday I drove thirty miles in one of the most populous and thrifty counties of Utah, 150 miles from Salt Lake. We passed through seven or eight pretty villages, with populations varying from 500 to 3,500, and found no saloon. In two there were public-houses, but neither sold even ale. The mostfiery beverage we found was soda-water at a drug store, but without the "stick." The druggist said a short time previous he had "braced" a traveler with a "stick," and paid into the city treasury a $50 fine.

Who can blame the live newspaper man for feeling disappointed in striking such a country as this, when he expected to fall in with a mob of ruffians who delight in blood, and think no more of cutting a Gentile throat than of wringing the neck of a chicken? Not much sensation can be made of green trees and growing grain, of garden patches and quaint-looking little cottages scattered through the valleys or bundled into villages. There may have been, and doubtless were, Danites half a century ago, but they are horrors of the past like the Inquisition. The Mormons of this generation know nothing of them, except what they learn from old books, and these are probably as reliable as much of the correspondence as we see nowadays. The writers think they must make their letters readable, and that nothing readable can be said of the Mormons which is not spiced by tales of lawlessness and accounts of crime. Hence the old stories are told over again and given to the world as something new, whereas, if they attach to any people or time, it is not to the Mormons of this age.

But the tourists and correspondents are not altogether to blame for saying improbable things about the Mormons and telling unlikely stories of Utah life. They are actually told much that we afterward see in print. A section of Raymond's Boston excursionists has been in town three or four days, and I warrant they have gathered much new and startling information concerning Utah and Mormon life. On yesterday the writer accompanied a party of them in a drive about town, and actually saw his own cottage pointed out to them as probably the home of three wives. The hack-driver was plied with the silliest of questions, such as "Who lives there?" "How many wives has that man?" "That woman is dressed well—is that the favorite wife?" "That old woman carrying a bundle must be a cast-off wife?" and so on. The hackman, who was a combination of vulgar wag and unmitigated liar, had a ready answer to everything that was asked. He knew everybody and was acquainted with every family. No guide-book ever told so much. He repeated the ancient yarn that the chimneys, as a rule, indicated the number of wives in the house—a wife for a chimney. I listened in silence to the preposterous and improbable stories told by this ignorant liar, until he suggested that my own cottage might be a modern harem because of its three chimney stacks. My Boston friends had swallowed as solid truth all this string of bosh and falsehood by which the hackman had enlivened and made interesting a 2 hours' drive. They seemed disappointed if not really angry when I assured them that the fellow had been lying; and when we stopped at my house to meet the little wife who presides there, whose Mormon acquaintance extends not beyond a circle of half a dozen, and whose three years in Salt Lake have given her no more knowledge of polygamy and polygamists than she could gather from indefinite rumor and newspaper gossip, our bean-worshipping friends, I know, were sorry that all they had heard should not be true. This is but one incident of many similar in character occurring every week. It suggests that in order to protect his reputation and dispel doubts as to the character of his house the Gentile resident in Salt Lake should knock down his chimneys—or shoot the hackman. The average correspondent who passes a night or two in the city of the saints accepts as truth what is told him. He does this, first, because it furnishes material for more interesting letters, and second, for the reason that he doesn't see why it shouldn't all be true. It is all in keeping with a large share of the literature concerning the Mormons. Doubt might be cast upon anything of a different nature.

However, much depends upon the hands into which the correspondent falls. There are a few Gentiles who hang about the hotels and make it their business to "stuff" the newspaper man. They have all the old Mormon outrages at their tongues' ends, and spin them more glibly and with as much earnestness as the schoolboy ever declaimed, "The boy stood on the burning deck," at the quarterly examination. On the other hand, should the correspondent fall in with the Mormons, he is carried about and made much of, is shown the bright side of everything, and is now and then taken into a polygamous family where the household is placed on exhibition for an hour or a day. There is a straining on the part of both classes to capture the newspaper writer and direct the tone of his letters. Neither party is beyond misleading the man who writes. I have heard Mormons deceive and anti-Mormons manufacture outrages and indecencies by the score. The only way to get at the facts is to stay here, not a week or a month, but long enough to become acquainted with the people, to visit at their homes and become familiar with their every-day lives. When one has done this he will conclude that Salt Lake in most particulars is not unlike any other American town.

ARTISTS' MODELS.

What a New York Painter Says of the People Who Pose.

From the New York Tribune.

A slight figure flitted in at the door of the Academy of Design the other day and disappeared into an inner room. She had a rosy face and bright eyes.

"That is one of our models," said the professor, rolling his eyes at the door. "A great change has taken place in public opinion concerning the use of living models," continued the professor, willing to talk. "Ten years ago there was an outcry against it. People said it was scandalous. Posing being a new thing, it was harp to get a model of either sex. Now you can get hundreds, and engagements are made weeks in advance."

"What pay do they get?"

"When the life class was first established we had to pay $1 50 an hour; now the regular price is fifty cents an hour. Models pose from twelve to twenty hours a week. They are changed every two weeks, so as to give the students a change of subject. Men are better models than women, as they are less easily fatigued."

"How long does the model stand without resting?"

"An inexperienced one only twenty minutes at first. Stand in one position five minutes without moving a muscle, and you will get some idea of how tiresome it is."

"Do they show much embarrassment?"

"So much that the muscles are as rigid as iron, and they become drenched with perspiration. But after posing two or three times the embarrassment wears off. It becomes merely routine business."

"Do many make it a profession?"

"There are several men who do nothing else. They pose here at the Academy, at the Art Students' League and in private studios. Most of our female models are young women who work in workshops and factories. They receive small wages and think it a great piece of fortune if they can earn $10 a week extra by posing. They invariably give fictitious names.

"Some curious bits of romance have come under my observation," the professor resumed after a pause. "A pretty little brunette came in one day and asked for an engagement. She was in straitened circumstances, but did not disclose her history. She was so sweet-tempered that she at once became a great favorite. I have never seen any one so ambitious to earn money. She would pose eight hours a day. It made her grow pale with fatigue, but she wouldn't give up. Well, it turned out that she was a married woman. She belonged to a good family in New Jersey, and was a mere girl when she married a Japanese, the son of an Ex-Minister from Japan. The husband spent all his money, was thriftless and earned nothing. She had to keep him. She frequently posed for artists in their studios. A richly-dressed woman came in one morning and inquired for her. The model, she said, was her niece and she intended to make her the heiress to her property if she could be found. After a two days' search the model was traced to a private studio, where she was posing for an artist and his wife. This was the last I heard of the pet model.

"It is always the whip of necessity that drives people into posing. One day a woman of refinement made an application. She was handsomely dressed, wearing a sealskin sacque and a silk dress. Her face was pale and careworn, and she said she had not had enough to eat. Her story was that she had married well, her husband having an income of $6,000 a year. When he died the fortune they posessed took wings. She said she had tried copying and other methods of earning a living, but she had not met with success. Her figure had always been admired for its grace of outline. Why should she not pose?"

"Do you have any boys for models?"

"One of the best subjects we have ever had was a young boy. He had a form like Apollo. His father was a down-town banker who was ruined by the panic of 1873. This model, whom I met in the street yesterday, has now a responsible position as a bank clerk. One of our students posed last winter. He was from Maine and had to depend entirely on his earnings. This young man is one of the most promising students in the academy. All kinds of people drift in—people you would never dream of. One of our handsomest models is an itinerant Methodist preacher. He has the form of a gladiator."

BLOATING headaches, nervous prostration and spinal weakness cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Another Boy Fiddler.

From a Recent London Letter.

This is the season for drawing-room phenomena. A little Italian boy, only nine years old, Master Galleotti, is the musical wonder of the hour. The gifted lad is not only a fine pianist; he is a remarkable improvisatore. He will take any musical theme and elaborate it, change it, return it, play with it even as a nightingale weirdly sings variations on any air it hears, perched in the tree tops of its native copse. The other night Sir George Wombwell invited the Prince of Wales to listen to this talented child. Mr. Alfred de Rothschild and George Grossmith, of the Savoy Theater, each gave Galleotti two bars of music, which he elaborated into witching variations. At the request of the Prince George Grossmith then gave the boy the ghost melody in "The Corsican Brothers," and the young Italian music-poet treated the impressive melody in the most striking fashion, first presenting it as a march, then as a fugue, then as a waltz. These society appearances of artistic people are generally the forerunner of professional debuts, and it is quite probable that the Italian lad will presently add his own claim to the already numerous ones of the London musical season.

STEWART'S SLAVES.

How the Employes of a Dry Goods House are Treated.

A. Stewart Clark in New York Courier.

Any morning at twenty-five minutes past six o'clock, may be seen in Ninth street, between Fourth avenue and Broadway, about fifty or sixty men. These are the packers, porters and laboring men employed by A. T. Stewart & Co., all waiting eagerly to get in as soon as the door opens, for they must be in on the moment of half-past six o'clock all the year round, and they get through about seven at night, but often later. These are poor wretched men—or dogs, if I may call them so. A porter in this house has to be a menial and a servant of servants, as I will show you further on, his salary being from six to ten dollars per week, the latter figure being only obtained after five years of faithful service and subordination. They are requested to wear white shirts and appear as neat as possible, so that the public will think what a nice job they have, and good pay. Their morning exrrcise consists of what they call a sweep; that is, all the floors have to be swept clean, counters dusted, etc., with the windows closed for fear of the dust blowing over the goods. But a large quantity of fine dust goes down the throat, into the eyes, and up the noses of these poor fellows, who are pushed on by the foreman, Mr. Wm. Brown, who is too anxious for the welfare of the house, and I must say, an intelligent man. He has often to instruct many of the officials in their duty. Having been nearly twenty years in the house he understands it fully, but the poor man is not paid for many things he has to attend to.

The wholesale packing-room is in the cellar, a very unhealthy place for men to be confined on account of gas, foul air and dust. Many poor men have sickened here, and had to leave after coming from the fine, healthy and airy fifth floor of Chambers street and Broadway. The change was too much—but not enough in the pocket. This was a beautiful retail store before the wholesale came up, but it has been changed so much that it looks lonely and deserted on the upper floors now, as the wholesale men are being bounced out rapidly. Some receive two weeks' salary on going away, and some old porters who were nearly twenty years in the house were discharged on a week's notice, without getting anything. As a general thing, the onger a workingman is in this house the less he is thought of. The basement has a square fenced in on the Ninth street side, where about twenty to thirty young men from eighteen to thirty years old are kept rolling up packages and addressing them on a salary of from $3 to $7 per week. These poor fellows are shabbily dressed, the toes appearing through many of their shoes. They live on ten-cent meals in a Quaker dairy on Tenth street, and strive to save a little money for clothes. Mr. Vandine, who has charge of these living skeletons, looks very much like a country schoolmaster.

Right opposite, separated by a partition, are a number of entry and calling-off clerks, looking at each other in an excited manner, waiting to be discharged.

But let me return to my humble friends, the porters, who have to be in the store the first in the morning, and the last at night. A number of salesmen are detailed morning and evening, one at each counter, to watch these men for fear that they might steal something, while other spotters are watching the salesmen. A number of porters are kept till nine o'clock every night, to examine the building, go all over the floors, and push their noses into every hole and crevice of the walls. For this they receive $1 per week, and any other house in the United States would give them 50 cents a night or $3 per week. As well as doing all these things they have to attend to Mr. Denning's house, opposite the store in Ninth street, put the coal in, keep it heated in the winter, take up the carpets, shake them—in fact, do what any of the servant girls tell them to. They pump up water in six houses in Lafayette Place, put coal in there, too, and as the houses are let off in rooms, help to clean all the beds in the spring, besides turning up and down, night and morning, 125 iron shutters and opening 1,000 at the Tenth street store. They cut wood, take it to Judge Hilton, No. 7 West Thirty-fourth street, also to his son's house, No. 1 West Thirty-fourth street, and Mrs. Stewart's house. They take their shoes off when they go to that devout and religious man's house, William Libby's, Thirty-seventh street and Park avenue, for fear they might make a noise going up the stairs. He was the principal man to advance Dr. John Hall's salary from $10,000 to $15,000, and then he comes down to his store and expects a good dressmaker to work for him for $7 per week, when all other houses would give her $14.

One very hot day the porters were busy working at Mr. Libby's house, when one of them asked the girl for a drink of water. When he gave back the pitcher to the servant, Mrs. Libby made her appearance, and said: "I hope, Bridget, that wasn't milk you gave that man."

"No, faith, ma'am, I couldn't, if I wanted to, as you have the door locked."

"That's right, Bridget; Mr. Libby pays them a large salary, and they can buy anything they want."

He says one dollar a day is enough—another Henry Ward Beecher man.

Oh, church membership, modern Christianity and hypocrisy, you go hand in hand!

Ex-Judge Hilton told the Sun reporter, the dandy Times and the every-day Herald, of the kind manner in which he nursed the employes when they got sick. Then, with tears running down his manly cheeks, he said: "I bury them when they die"—a very nice story for Mr. Hilton. But how does it come that every porter, clerk or salesman that dies in the employment of this house is buried by subscription among the employes? I trust that the time will come when all rich men will learn to tell the truth.

A New Fast Train.

Commencing June 4 the Vandalia Line will run a fast Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Louisville express, leaving St. Louis at 7:30 a. m. (except Sunday), arriving at Indianapolis at 3:40 p. m., "over three hours ahead of any other line;" at Cincinnati 7 p. m., and Louisville 7:35 p. m., thereby shortening time from "one to four hours" between these points, making this by far the most desirable route to points named, as well as to all Southern and Southeastern cities, including the famous Virginia Springs. New York day express with hotel car attached leaves St. Louis as heretofore at 8 a. m. daily, by which passengers can reach New York at 7:25 next evening, over two hours in advance of any other line. Call at 100 N. Fourth street for full information.

A Dead Pickpocket King.

From the New York Times.

James Dolan, alias Fatty Dolan, known to the detective force as "The King of Pickpockets," died on Friday in the State Prison at Sing Sing. Dolan was born in this city forty-two years ago. His father, an Irish truckman, paid some attention to the lad's education and had arranged to apprentice him to the trade of a jeweler, when he fell into bad company, joined "the Bowery gang," and became the associate of Thomas and Theodore Davis, "Shell" Hamilton, and "One-eyed" Thompson, and others of that ilk. He speedily became one of the most expert and audacious of pickpockets. He served several terms in this city for larceny, and was twice imprisoned in Boston. During the Paris Exposition he and John, alias "Red" Leary, the Manhattan Bank robber, went to Paris and were operating extensively when they were arrested by Vibert, the then Chief of the Parisian Detective Police. Dolan, who, while stealing, wore blue glass spectacles, contended at the trial that he was a professor of English language in an American institute, and that he had visited Europe for the purpose of consulting distinguished oculists regarding his eyes, whose sight had been impaired by constant study. This, however, did not impose on the French authorities, and Leary and Dolan, being convicted, were sentenced to three and a half years in the galleys at Crest. On their release they returned to this country. Dolan was arrested a number of times, but was discharged for lack of evidence. About a year ago he was arrested for stealing a watch and chain, and was sentenced to seven and a half years' imprisonment. His death resulted from heart disease. He was buried in Calvary Cemetery yesterday. Out of the thousands of dollars of money he had stolen during his lifetime, not a cent remained at the time of his death.

English Smoking Parties.

London Letter to New York Tribune.

There is springing up in this country a fashion which is hardly likely to take root in the United States. I do not believe, from all I know of American ladies, that they would endure the introduction of such an "institution" for an instant. In this country the smoking concerts introduced by Lord Dunmore, of blockade-running celebrity, were made palatable to the unfair sex by giving alternate ladies' concerts. Lovely woman allowed herself to be propitiated. What is the consequence of this culpable weakness? It is becoming fashionable for married men to give regular smoking parties, from which ladies are rigidly excluded. There is no chance of breaking such order up by surprise parties of damsels, for if the mistress of the house acquiesces what dame shall dare to call her to account. If the Domina gives up her drawing-room to be smoked in by eighty or a hundred men, so that her curtains are saturated with cigar smoke and her carpet burnt into holes by the butt-ends of cigarettes, what other lady shall undertake to awaken her to a sense of her crushed condition? For my own part, I should like to see the attempt made, for there would be a scene. Nathaniel Hawthorne saw the entity described by him as "the female Bull" under a disagreeable aspect, but he only did justice to her outward aspect. He never experienced the downright insolence and arrogaance of a English lady, "born and bred," when her mighty "back" is really "up." American cleverness and bitter raillery, German dumb haughtiness, and French persiflage, are mere gossamer to the panoply of brass and triple steel in which the "lady in her own right" steps into the arena. I make the distinction in her own right" advisedly. For there are ladies and ladies. Some are called "my lady" by virtue of their husbands' being "city knights," successful grocers, or other traders in London or other cities. There are also the wives of Baronets of old creation and the wives of Peers. I am not prepared to depreciate peeresses as professors of the art of putting people down; but unless the peeress has been born in the purple she is apt to miss many opportunities of displaying this gift. Perhaps the daughter of a peer who has married a peer affords its highest expression.

Thus male smoking parties are the fashion. Sometimes they follow a dinner party, and the gentlemen retire to the drawing-room, enter in, and dwell there with the other men, who arrive any hour up to midnight. Very often there is music, and excellent music, and everybody smokes and eats caviare sandwiches and drinks Pommery or Bollinger, or brandy and pol until 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning. Sir George Wombwell, who had such a narrow escape for his life at Balaclava and again in the terrible hunting accident, when Sir Thomas Slingsby was drowned, gave a grand smoking party a few nights ago. The company was both distinguished and exalted.

The Prince of Wales was present, and also Lord Alington, once known as "Bunny" Sturt, Sir Owen Lanyon, of Transvaal fame, Mr. Oscar Clayton, who cures the gout and tells good stories, Sir Julius Benedict, the composer of the "Lily of Killarney," Dr. Quain, physician and deerstalker, Mr. Bancroft, the actor and manager of the Haymarket Theater, Mr. Coghlan, Mr. Edmund Yates, of the World, Mr. Edward Lawson, of the Daily Telegraph, Mr. Toole and some three score more of artistic and literary celebrities and men about town not to know whom is to "argue oneself unknown." The wonderful Italian boy, Cesarino Galeotti, who not only plays well on the pianoforte, but improvises on any theme given to him, went through his remarkable performances.

The North Pole Craze.

Washington Letter to the Philadelphia Times.

I went over the way to see Danenhower the other evening. As I came away a friend asked me, "What did Danenhower do that he is a hero?" I couldn't say for the life of me, unless it was that he got back. Poor fellow! As for my utilitarian spirit, I don't believe the knowledge of the whereabouts, height, circumference and material of the North Pole is worth the eye of any living man. Yet you could man half a dozen ships to-day with men anxious for this sort of fame. My glory will keep without putting it on ice. Lucian Young wants to get a ship and go. His idea is to establish stations of supplies as far north as possible. Good idea. I would suggest that stations a mile apart, supplied with a gallon of whisky each, be established on a direct line to the pole. If some of our naval officers didn't follow the scent and get there no other plan would work. It is all humbug, anyhow, my friend Gen. Pleasanton says. The public is like an army mule, which stands still while another mule eats his tail off. It tickles the mule and don't hurt the eater's digestion, but it looks funny to an outsider.

THE gentlemen who raised the money for the sprinkling of Page avenue this week should have a memorial window in the room of the Jockey Club.

OF course Mr. HENRY IRVING, the awful English actor, is coming to this country to take part in the Dramatic Festival which Mr. OTIS HAUL is organizing in Cincinnati.

COL. BROADHEAD ought to write a letter deprecating the reunions of the army worm now being held in this State. These army reunions have a tendency to stir up the bitter feelings of the agriculturists.

IT is to be hoped that the Supreme Court will hasten up and reach that question that touches Dr. CRITTENDEN'S salary for the merry month of May. If the State Auditor is to be mandamused he should be mandamused at once, for the Governor must be in a fearful state of anxiety.

GUITEAU'S lawyer, the little man from Chicago, is buzzing around the courts in Washington, trying to have the records corrected. The records will be closed on the 30th inst., and all inaccuracies will be overlooked by the American people, except the breaking of the rope.

THE negligent officers of the burned steamer "Golden Eagle" were yesterday acquitted by a Memphis jury on the indictments charging them with wholesale homicide. The little annoyance to which they have been subjected however, may have the effect of enlightening river men as to the best methods of handling jute.

IT is gratifying to know that Circuit Attorney HARRIS is slowly emerging from "the valley and shadow." A sudden relapse may yet carry him off, but his immediate friends have faith in his extraordinary vitality, and are now quite confident. If the good wishes and prayers of a community avail anything, Mr. HARRIS will certainly be spared.

IT is the fixed determination of the editor of the Jefferson City Tribune—and in this matter we presume the editor reflects the views of Dr. CRITTENDEN—to force Mr. TILDEN to accept the Democratic nomination for President in 1884. He says that "with TILDEN to lead we have a dead sure thing in 1884." The same sort of a "dead" thing, we presume, that we had in 1876.

THE good Deacon SMITH of the Cincinnati Gazette is highly amused at the spectacle of Mr. DANA, of the New York Sun, "pronouncing a jeremiad on the decline of religion because Col. ROBERT INGERSOLL, the unbeliever, delivered a decoration oration in New York City recently." The Deacon intimates that the diabolical gentleman down below who holds a mortgage on Mr. DANA'S soul must enjoy a joke of this character.

SOME zest will be added to the political canvass in New York this fall by the failure of the Legislature to pass an appropriation bill. It will be necessary on this account to elect a Congressman at large. If Mr. CONKLING was at all desirous of feeling the public pulse this would be a fine opening for him, but he is attending to his own business and making money now. He may be able to indulge in the luxury of politics by the time the Presidential election rolls around.

IT is a settled fact that a gang of thieves and counterfeiters in this country have for some time been in possession of one of the original Treasury plates from which bonds are printed, but the fact that the bonds of this particular issue were called and redeemed two years ago without showing an excess is tolerably good evidence that no improper use was ever made of the plate. The theft of the plate reflects in the severest manner upon the Treasury officials who have the care of this sort of property.

IT is quite natural that uninformed persons should fall into the mistake of supposing that the recent invention of a printing press in this country which inserts extra pages in a regular sheet is the first step towards the newspaper of the future, which is to be of book-form and of many pages. If this is the destiny of the daily newspaper we are a long distance behind the Old World. The Vienna New Free Press, the leading newspaper of the German-speaking people, has been printed for years as a sixteen-page journal, something after the style of the Pall Mall Gazette, varying according to the pressure of matter. In this connection it might be mentioned that the presses employed by the New Free Press not only cut and arrange the sheets, but they affix a Government stamp on every number. The art of stereotyping from the papier mache matrix is a French invention, it should be remembered. While it is true that we have made rapid strides in printing machinery in this country, and while it must be admitted that our journalism is progressive, incisive and insatiable, it must not be forgotten that the best genius of Europe is also entered in the cause, and that we can occasionally pick up a good idea from the other side of the water.

GEN. STEEDMAN, the new Chief of Police of Toledo, has notified the gamblers that they must leave the city. He is a stern man and he will rid the place of the sports or break something in the attempt. The General knows something of the evils of gaming himself. He has spent two or three fortunes trying to overcome the seductive game of faro. He must have a deep-seated grudge against the sports. The fact that St. Louis has effectually suppressed public gambling, will have a tendency to encourage social reformers elsewhere. The thing has hitherto been regarded as impracticable.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Under the above heading the New York Times discourses in the following dispassionate and rational manner on the cry of "Panic" which now resounds throughout the country:

There are not wanting elements of difficulty and danger in the situation, but they are far less in number, in intensity and in variety than those which existed ten years since, immediately before the crash of 1873. Business generally is on a sounder basis, and credit is very much less extended. The currency is in a far healthier condition. There is not the disturbing force of a large volume of fluctuating irredeemable Government paper at work. The higher cost of living, which is the most effective of the obstacles to active trade and production now existing, is not produced, as to a great extent it then was, by a bad and excessive currency, but mostly by the regular working of the laws of offer and demand, and these may be relied on to bring about a safer, easier and less violent solution of present difficulties than was then possible. Above all, though we have gone too fast, and discounted the future, as we are always bound to do, the country has made very great and lasting advance in real wealth. Population has increased rapidly. Immigration has added heavily, not, as we are so often told nowadays, to the consuming class only, but rather to the class which at once produces and consumes. Extensive areas of land have been brought under cultivation. The new labor has largely augmented the productive capacity of land previously under tillage. It has also increased the power of production in manufactures. The vast and complicated mass of exchanges which constitute trade is, far more than ten years ago, made up of legitimate exchanges representing honest industry. The capital of the country, accruing from savings, large and small, has multiplied, and its invigorating and sustaining force is much greater than then. The firm, underlying support of actual resources, yielding their harvests to the energy and ingenuity of our people, is incomparably more extended. All the conditions of assured progress are greatly more favorable. There is not any excuse for heedless and intemperate speculation; there is even less for reckless apprehension.

THE Missouri Republican, an alleged newspaper published and to some extent circulated in the First Ward of this city, by GEORGE KNAPP & CO., reproduces from the Independence Sentinel, with apparent indorsement, an article advocating clemency for FRANK JAMES, the bloody bandit. The Missouri Republican is understood to be the personal organ of Dr. CRITTENDEN, LL. D., who is now filling the office of Governor of Missouri. It is well known that Dr. CRITTENDEN, despite his persistent denials, is anxious to have Mr. JAMES restored to peaceful citizenship, and the republication or the Sentinel's article in the arid columns of the Republican is satisfactory evidence that a very feeble effort is being made to prepare the way for a pardon for the outlaw when he shall have agreed to go through the form of conviction in one of the courts of the State. The claim is made by the Sentinel and the Republican that FRANK JAMES, while a brave and talented man, was really never vicious and brutal after the manner of his late brother JESSE. The idea seems to prevail in official circles that he has the elements of good citizenship in him and Dr. CRITTENDEN is determined, if possible, to reform him and have him born again. For our part, we insist that FRANK JAMES shall be arrested, tried, convicted and punished for his crimes as a warning to the criminal classes. Any sort of a compromise with him would be a lasting shame and disgrace to our already much-abused State.

GEN. CONWAY, a military hero who is chiefly remarkable for his connection with a movement which brought a large portion of the black labor of the Southern Mississippi Valley up to Kansas—the promised land—to starvation and the poor-houses, has made another remarkable discovery. He has found out that the late civil war was due to whisky alone. This brilliant theory will make necessary an abridgment of all the learned works which the statesmen on both sides of MASON and DIXON'S line have written and are about to write. Gen. CONWAY told a temperance meeting at the gospel tent in Brooklyn the other day that Admiral SEMMES, the commander of the Alabama, had explained to him the whole origin of the war one day in a chat they had at New Orleans. The Confederate Captain said that there was a meeting of fourteen prominent Southern men at Charleston to discuss what was to be done upon President Lincoln's inauguration. JEFFERSON DAVIS was alone for war; the others were all for peace. The leader of the Confederacy reinforced his persuasive argument with a demijohn of old Jim Crow whisky, and in less than an pooling the great rebellion was resolved. by many tha ry of Gen. CONWAY'S entitles him to rank with DARWIN and NEWTON and the other master minds of the Anglo-Saxon blood. But there is one consequence which Gen. CONWAY overlooks. If the war was due to whisky and the abolition of slavery due to the war, should not such philanthropists as CONWAY preach the eulogy of whisky rather than denounce the civilizing fluid as they do?

IN the House yesterday there was a spirited debate over the bill to meet the deficiency in the appropriation for the Centennial spree at Yorktown. For the purpose of keeping up the reputation of the State of Virginia for free-handed hospitality, Senator JOHNSON spent $32,000 over and above the appropriation, for whiskies, wines and cigars for the people who went spreeing with him on that memorable occasion. In considering the Senator's luxuriousness yesterday, several of the members, who evidently missed their share of the liquor, indulged in some very loose talk. Mr. SUNSET COX, who is not much larger than an ordinary page, actually disputed the word of SPARKS, of Illinois, and boldly told the burly Sucker that he wasn't big enough to talk to him. SPARKS said "Phew" and called Mr. COX a "little scamp." At least the press report says so. We must be permitted to believe that Mr. COX did not hear this ungentlemanly retort. He is a man of excessive honor and very adroit in the use of his fists, and we are certain that no living man could apply this epithet to him either publicly or privately without being knocked into a cocked hat figuratively speaking.

THEY are now groaning in agony up in Pennsylvania because the oil supply is too plentiful. A new well, known as the Cadwallader well, is yielding 3,000 barrels a day, and the Philadelphia Times cries out that a great industry is being prostrated. The State is splendidly supplied with Protection for iron, but overproduction has knocked the life out of that industry. The oil men will have to be protected or they will soon be filling the land with their lamentations. It will be necessary to place a restraining plug in the big wells and make it a penitentiary offense for a man to tap the earth to the extent of more than 200 barrels a day.

THE Chicago Times is not even willing to admit that we can have races in St. Louis. It calls our "Derby" a base counterfeit and even denounces our splendid Cote Brilliante course as an ill-shaped track. Chicago has made a great reputation as a racing center. About two-thirds of the races trotted and run over the Chicago course are "thrown" by rascally jockeys and thieving pool sharps. No race is considered a success in Chicago unless it is "set-up," and the result is that few respectable turfmen are ever seen in that neighborhood.

EX-GOV. MOSES, of South Carolina, a gentleman who was highly distinguished in the days of carpet-baglsm, has finally found his level. He was yesterday sentenced by a New York police judge to the penitentiary for six months on the charge of petty larceny. If MOSES had received his just dues for grand larcenies committed in South Carolina at the time he and his corrupt pals were running riot there, he would now be engaged in serving out a life sentence instead of a six-months' play spell in some well-organized prison.

PERSONAL.

—Mrs. Fanny Kemble is living quietly at Butlerville, near Philadelphia.

—Some London jewelers are exhibiting a late Hungarian noble's scarf-pins—739 in number, and very valuable.

—Guiteau is said by the Washington papers to be very much depressed. What the people would like to see is Mr. Guiteau very much elevated.

—There is not much reverence for greatness over in Kansas. The Kerwin Chief alludes to the present Governor as "that itinerant old bummer, St. John."

—Gen. Rosecrans has published in the San Francisco papers an address to his constituents. He seeks re-election on the ground that he can make himself more useful than a Republican in the matter of Chinese legislation.

—Mrs. Hayes is the only member of the Hayes family who figured conspicuously on Decoration Day. Her husband has dropped out of publicity, but the lady made a speech to a Grand Army post when presenting them with some colors.

—The American colt Romeo did not start in the race for the Grand Prize of Paris Sunday, and a cable dispatch says that "early in the morning it was discovered that he was in no condition to run." Romeo seems to be a true American.

—According to a correspondent of the New York Sun, the ladies of that city have contracted a habit of biting their lips and contorting the lower parts of their faces, which fails to improve homely countenances and renders pretty ones less attractive.

—Walt Whitman, now 64 years of age, is living quietly at Camden, N. J. The cell made by the Massachusetts Attorney-General over the proposed republication of Whitman's "Leaves of Grass" has served to introduce the old man to a younger generation; but his poems, prurient or other, will hardly be read with interest or entertainment. They are prolonged yawps.

An Argument Against Celibacy.

ST. LOUIS, June 6, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have noticed the articles in your paper in regard to the character and conduct of one of the Catholic clergy, and, lamentable as the story is, there is much that might be said, not in extenuation, but in explanation. There can be no sympathy with this man's sin, but the question is often raised, why should these stumbling-blocks be placed in the way of a certain class of men in the world who are shut out from privileges which an all-wise Creator evidently intended should be shared by all? The privilege referred to being that of the possession by each of his own family, and the right of lawful exercise of the affections. The Lord Jesus said: "In the beginning He made them male and female;" implying that neither sex was complete without the other; and it is well known that a man is much of a true man and woman of a true woman in consequence of their united hearts and lives, after the manner which God intended. Paul said, expressly: "Marriage is honorable in all," and nowhere in the word of God is it forbidden. Then why are these men excluded from the enjoyment of these ties, which no doubt a large part of them hunger and long for, to doubt which is to doubt their humanity. Christ said again: "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." Will he have more respect for the commandments of the Catholic Fathers than for those of the Jewish Fathers? Why is it that men are so blind? Why cast aside the plain and simple teaching of the word of God and take the Commandments of men for their guide, and so lay heavy yokes upon their fellow men which they are not able to bear? The wonder is that there are not more Luthers, whose efficient work for God and man was not hindered but advanced by his making the "sweet-faced nun" the partaker of his joys and sorrows. For one, my heart goes out in sympathy for this great company of priests who, if they fulfil their vows, must lead lonely lives, bereft of much that makes life desirable. And it would seem that the first step toward the purification of that great church might well be the bursting of the bonds of celibacy by which their clergy are bound, and then the incentive to one particular sin would forever cease.

A WOMAN.

The Peter Funk Auction-Houses.

ST. LOUIS, June 6, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Will you inform me what is the difference in the offense between one man who shouts and yells as he goes along the street, doing no harm but yelling and shouting, and the cheap Peter Funk auctioneer, who, about four feet from the sidewalk in his store, shouts, yells and halloos like a Comanche? The man who yells in the street is arrested for disturbing the peace, is he not? but the Peter Funk auctioneer, who is a thousand times more noisy, is allowed to go on tormenting those who have the misfortune to be within the sound of his voice. The attention of the Police Commissioners is called to the two or three "Cheap Johns" on Fifth near Franklin avenue. If they are not a nuisance the writer knows nothing. How a crowd of men can stand for hours and listen to these blatherskites is one of the things no fellow can find out, and the humbugged pay two prices for everything they buy in these one-horse places. CITIZEN.

A Protestant's View.

ST. LOUIS, June 6, 1882.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In giving us yesterday "the other side" of the Father Gleeson scandal, the question arises whether it is probable that a man holding Father Gleeson's position would willingly and without compulsion acknowledge to Mrs. Mary Donnelly that the child was his. For when he said, as she states, "You wouldn't believe a priest would do such a thing, but I'll tell you what's more," etc., etc., who was there to compel him to say that? We can not believe that such a man would acknowledge that awful crime, even to his own shadow, unless confronted and compelled by his superior to do so. Therefore Mrs. Donnelly's statement conclusively proves the innocence of Father Gleeson. Such is the view of a

The "Inimical and Venal Press."

From the Sedalia Democrat.

Gov. Crittenden is reported to have indicated his disapprobation of an "inimical and venal press." Gov. C. is not the first official who has charged venality upon the press the moment it has become "inimical" to himself. But the trouble about such charges is in making them stick.

Aristocracy Spreading.

From the New York Sun.

A foreign observer in New York once remarked that American aristocracy consisted of hotel-keepers and steamboat captains; but since his day the ranks described have been swelled by elevated railroad guards and ticket agents. Federal officials will probably ere long be added.

New Missouri Wheat.

The first wheat of this season's growth of Missouri's crop to arrive in this market was received this morning by Humphrey, Malone & Blake from Point Pleasant, Mo. There was only twenty sacks in the lot, and the condition was not of the best, being soft and rather damp. The berry was quite well developed and bright. This wheat was auctioned off at the call on 'Change, selling to F. Schwartz at the fancy price of $2 05 per bushel.

ECLECTIC MEDICAL SOCIETY.

Thirteenth Annual Meeting of the Missouri Doctors this Morning.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Eclectic Medical Society of Missouri was held this morning at the American Medical College. The president, Dr. J. W. Thrailkill, and the secretary, Dr. P. D. Yost, occupied their several stations, and about 100 members were present. The session opened with prayer by Dr. Tudor, of St. John's M. E. Church, South. After the opening Dr. Thrailkill announced that, on account of ill-health, he would be unable to preside or even remain at the meeting, and thereupon he appointed Dr. J. T. McClanahan, of Boonville, a past president, to occupy the chair. Dr. Thrailkill presented a letter explanatory of his condition physically and experience in Colorado, stating that he had made the mistake of going at once to the elevated locality, and had to return or die. On motion the letter was referred to a special committe, consisting of Drs. J. E. Morris, J. H. Wright and T. Hodge Jones, with instructions to prepare such resolutions as would meet the wishes and express the sentiments of the society.

The Censorial Committee, consisting of Drs. W. V. Rutledge, F. C. Cheatham and Geo. C. Pitzer, reported the following names for permanent membership: S. S. Carr, Buffalo, Mo.; W. S. Moore, Middletown; Chas. H. Rigg, Middletown; M. M. Huddleston, Portland, and R. L. Galbreath, Carthage.

Dr. A. Merrell, chairman of the Committee on State Legislation, reported that no laws had been passed as yet regulating the practice of medicine in this State, but assured the meeting that if any laws should be passed, the eclectic school would be justly represented.

Dr. McClanahan, a member of the same committee, said he had conversed with Gov. Crittenden, and was assured that any bill not giving equal privileges to all schools would be vetoed, even if passed by the Legislature, and the delegates confessed and declared they would see that equal justice is done.

Dr. Younkin said it was important to watch the course of men and events in connection with these laws and law-makers, for the physicians of Iowa had similar promises that were conspicuously violated.

Dr. Wm. M. Gates, of Carthage, said he had had some experience in the Legislature and knew that unjust laws could not be passed, as the allopathic school did not claim predominance in many parts of the State, and, therefore, delegates to the Legislature would be doing injustice to their own constituents to assist in the enactment of class legislation that favored the allopathic school.

The discussion continued during the morning hour, nearly all the delegates participating.

The secretary, Dr. Yost, read letters of regret from the following physicians: Dr. Geo. D. Coe, Kirksville; Dr. W. J. Atkinson, Clarksville; Dr. L. H. Callaway, Nevada; Dr. C. R. Hunt, Grant City; Dr. H. T. Brooks, Dewitt City; Dr. H. H. Brockman, Pleasant Mount, and O. W. Avery, Queen City.

The convention then took a recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon. On reassembling a number of essays and papers were read on cases in practice, followed by a general discussion that elicited a vast fund of information. A letter from Dr. Atkinson, on "Kine-pox vs. small-pox," arraigned the medical school for giving a preventive that frequently exceeded the disease in suffering and results.

L. U. Reavis' Rival.

A new enthusiast in the field of the Future Great has appeared. The Rev. Geo. A. Watson comes out in verse constrasting the past with the future of St. Louis, foreshadowing her splendor and wide-spread fame. In the reverend gentleman's preface the reader is informed that "even exclusive China yields to her supremacy. St. Patrick, the spiritual father of a never-conquered people, averts its impending destruction arising from moral causes. St. Louis, the ruler of a warlike race, rescues it from the disastrous effects of a wasting conflagration."

Here is a fragment of the reverend gentleman's opening stanza:

The rapid forceful progress
Of improvement and its ceaseless hum,
Shall rise in struggle rare,
And mighty ocean's murmur far outbum!

Church Lotteries.

An inquiry was to-day made by C. J. Doerr, Secretary of the German Protestant Orphan Society, by letter to the Chief of Police, whether church lotteries were amenable to prosecution. The answer was given that to make a lottery an indictable offense it must be followed as a business. The act of the Legislature was specially cognizant of these benevolent institutions, and the phrase "must be followed as an avocation" was injected into the enactment for that purpose.

National Board of Health.

Special to the Post-Dispaten.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 7.—The Executive Committee of the National Board of Health has adopted a system by which it hopes to prevent further importation of small-pox and lessen the danger of further epidemics. The system requires vessel-owners bringing emigrants to examine their condition on receiving them, and refuse any who have been exposed to small-pox. Any cases on board must be isolated. They are all to be inspected again on landing and vaccination and disinfection of baggage rendered when necessary. Inspectors have been appointed to operate on railroad lines in the interior country to inquire into the condition of immigrants, and when cases occur on trains to vaccinate the others and fumigate the baggage. Dr. Rauch is appointed inspector at Springfield, Ill., Drs. Starkweather, Bundy and Kiernan at Chicago, and Dr. Conner, East St. Louis.

NEW YORK CORRUPTION.

A Black Picture Strongly Drawn—The Metropolis Ready for Another Tweed.

How Gould is Getting Richer by Buying Legislation.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 5.—We are on the eve of exciting times in New York. I have already indicated in one of my previous letters that we are slowly but irretrievably drifting back to the days when Tweed, Sweeny, Connolly and their allies on the bench, in business and in society (as in the Fifth avenue palaces of A. T. Stewart and Hilton), in the press, which the ring subsidized with bogus advertisements to the extent of hundreds of thousands of dollars every year, and in that circle of flashy wealth presided over by a Fisk and a Gould, openly ruled and robbed this glorious commonwealth. The result of the legislative session confirms all I have said. It is in vain that the papers blame the corrupt legislators. It is not they who are so much at fault—it is the people. I have carefully, and without prepossession of opinion either way, looked into the matter. There is no doubt whatever to my mind that the people, or at least that mass of them who control the Government by their votes on ordinary occasions, do not care enough about a pure honest government. The respectable elements of New York do not vote at all, as a rule. Only once in twenty years can their torpor of indifference be aroused by some tremendous uprising of popular sentiment (and the quickening of the public conscience by newspaper hammering like that of the Times against the Tweed Ring) into voting on local affairs. That great effort of concentrate appears to have exhausted the public honesty. New York is perfectly ready for another Tweed; it will hail him with delight. There are thousands here who, by a general inroad into the treasury, have only to gain. These people who make the politicians because they form the primaries and caucuses, look for "flush times," and the respectable non-voters are indifferent until their pocketbooks are already affected.

WHO BOUGHT AND THE TAX STEAL.

What I have here stated may sound exaggerated, but time, I feel sure, will bear out its truth, and that before long. Just look at it. When the Tweed Ring was overthrown the Bar Association arose to a man to impeach and remove Barnard, Cardozo and McCunn, the three infamous Ring judges. Now Cardozo is exposed, and though no such indecency, profanity, drunkenness on the bench were proven against him as was the case with reference to Barnard, the testimony in other respects was worse than it ever was against Cardozo or McCunn, the other two. Neither Cardozo nor McCunn ever put down in black and white that they "could see how a good financial operation" could be made out of more than one in a given case for Mr. Gould, as Westbrook has done. The Herald, Times and Sun, the only three financially independent papers in New York, have branded the Judge as unfit to remain on the bench, and yet he is practically acquitted! The Bar Association does not raise a whisper. I asked Joseph H. Choate, one of the leaders of the bar here, and the partner of Kwarts, how he accounted for this strange silence, and he replied, shaking his head: "It's a ticklish business to attack a Judge unless you're dead sure you can remove him, because if you fail in the attempt you never need again argue a case before him?" The elevated railroad tax steal is even worse. In this case Gould has a bill passed "relieving" the elevated railroad monopoly of the payment of about $1,000,000 of taxes already due, and of about $500,000 to $500,000 per annum for all time to come—the interest on nearly $10,000,000. The steal is so bare-faced that even the Senate is silent about it, and that the Mayor and Controller, to save their own reputations, address a public protest to the Legislature. And yet, greased by Gould's money, the itching palm of the legislator elects his conscience, the bill is passed despite his protest, and Gov. Cornell will undoubtedly let it become a law.

"Ah!" the unsophisticated St. Louis reader will exclaim, "that will ruin him politically for life."

Not at all. The people here will not only reelect the majority of the bribe-takers, who have worn Gould's collar in the Legislature and robbed the city of millions, but they will exalt Cornell more highly than ever before—just as they exalted Garfield, Blaine, Grant, Conkling, and others of our great statesmen.

GOULD'S MONEY WELL EMPLOYED.

It is really very clever on the part of Gould—for robbery on gross is always clever; it is only petty larceny that is stupid—that after making, say, a million dollars out of cheating people in Wall street, he turns round and buys that million—or probably only a quarter of it—into the city of two, five or ten millions more, as the case may be. No wonder that with such shrewd employment of his money his wealth accumulates fast. The price of this bill cannot have cost him less than $100,000. He needed about sixty votes in the Assembly, and at the low average of $2,000—since the country members are cheap, and some of them can be got as low as $500—it would cost him that sum. But, supposing that Gov. Cornell was to veto the bill, would not Gould's money be all thrown away? You may trust Gould to have looked out for that. He knows that Cornell will need money when re-elected, and Gould is always a liberal contributor to elections where he can see his interests involved. Gould has never been known to cast a vote, but yet it is said that he subscribed $50,000 to Cornell's election last year. Next November he can well afford to contribute that amount. Meanwhile, no doubt Gould will make a very interesting newspaper matter to ascertain precisely the amount paid to every member of the Assembly who voted for this bill. Some day it will all come out, and create as great a sensation in a local way as the Credit Mobilier expose or the Mulligan letters did to a national extent; but meanwhile the legislative hunger for plunder has been whetted by the taste of Gould's blood. The appetite comes in eating, as the French say, and before parting from this subject, I will add that the prominent public official to whom I have already alluded in a previous letter is quite commonly reported to live, or rather to revel, at the rate of $50,000 a year, on a salary of $10,000. Where do the $40,000 come from?

A SPECULATIVE CRASH COMING.

But before the slow but steady accumulation of official and judicial debauchery leads to, another well-defined Tweed reform wave is sure to have exciting days of another kind, and these, I believe, are not far off. I do not agree with the croakings of the "croakers" who predict a panic like that of 1873. One thing is certain—a speculative crash is inevitable. Every indication points to the low reserve in the banks, the vast railroads which will cripple the purchasing power of millions, the tremendous balance of trade against us, the huge fortunes swallowed up in new railroad enterprises which cannot pay a return on the capital invested for several years to come, and the money in which is, therefore, meanwhile just thoroughly sunk as though it had been dropped to the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean, and, more than anything else, the overloading of commercial houses with speculative credits. Many of these houses which have been tempted outside their business by the "boom" must fail. I know of one house (one of its members is one of the highest officials in the government of New York) liable for one and a quarter millions in both its one new railroad enterprise alone. One of the leading members of the firm assured me, when I expressed my amazement at the largeness of the sum at risk, that they did not entertain the faintest idea of having to pay up over forty or, at the utmost, fifty per cent of their subscription. It is now even clear to them, over-sanguine as they were, that they will be called upon to pay in 100 cents on every dollar of their liability, and that very quickly, too. People of this class have not liquidated in the recent depression which has been going on. They have thought it would only last "a little while," and the more the securities in which they first invested at high premiums have shrunk to a more or less heavy discount, the more extensively they have bought to "reduce their average." But even they are appalled at the steadily continuing shrinking away of their values. A man may be ever so confident that he has a gold dollar in his hand, but when the whole world says it will give him only fifty cents for it even he must become "shaky." I do not believe that we are on the eve of another such prostration of business as followed in the wake of the panic of 1873, but that many of our richest financial institutions and business firms who have allowed themselves to be tempted into the vortex of speculation and assumed liabilities which they cannot discharge will fail seems to me very probable. The "panic" will not be so far-reaching, but it will be just as bad to those who are struck down by it.

PICKWICK THEATER.

The success attendant upon the summer garden programmes in this city during recent years has attracted the notice of managers throughout the country and given to St. Louis a standing in the theatrical world which it scarcely achieves on the score of the regular season. Emboldened by the appreciation manifested, a third garden was opened last night under the most pleasing and promising circumstances. The Pickwick and Al Fresco Theater, with Edward E. Rice as lessee and manager, inaugurated itself in a blaze of pyrotechnics, a crush of fashion and display of beauty such as has never been witnessed here in connection with a place of amusement, and fairly staggered the good plodding people who develop by degrees. Running around the high walls of the garden were semi-circles of colored globes, extending to the entire eastern side of the grand hall, and when thoroughly lighted reflecting the brilliancy of the gayest Parisian scenes. The entrance led through the cafe, which was fairly redolent with the perfume of living plants and flowers, and ushered the visitor out upon the semi-circle of reserved seats flanking the immense space of seats in the garden proper. Directly above the projecting semi-circle are the entresol boxes, more nearly resembling stalls, and above the boxes is the grand stand, covered with the flags of every nation and bright with illuminations. At 7:15 o'clock last night the Pickwick Military Band, under direction of Mr. Richard Madden, adorned with full regalia, assumed positions on the stand and gave an interesting concert, the programme containing seven melodious selections. At 8 o'clock occurred the handsome display of fireworks, under the supervision of Mr. Judy, resulting in an unusually successful manner. By this hour the theater and gardens were alive with fashionable people, who carefully inspected all the interior arrangements and cordially approved of them. The entire middle tier of seats was reserved for the exclusive use and benefit of the West End Club and their ladies, who appeared generally in full dress.

At 8:30 o'clock the drop curtain rose upon "The Chimes of Normandy," with the Hess Acme Opera Company in the cast. Miss St. Quinten, a perfectly new name and fresh face, appeared in the leading role of Mignonette, and became at once the center of attraction. She is small, plump and vivacious, has a pure, sweet voice and is an excellent coubrette. Her acting is greater than her singing, but there is no evidence of mediocrity in either. She obtained a splendid reception, and established herself in the esteem of all critics. Miss Emma Elsner's Germaine scored its share of triumphs. Mark Smith made an undoubted hit as the Marquis of Velleroi, singing with vigor and earnestness. He was given several encores. Alfred Wilkie as Robin More sang with good voice and easy grace, while the Gaspard of Henry Peakes met with the most complimentary applause. Indeed, the entire cast, including the chorus of pretty girls and ugly men, was something above the average of summer garden companies. There can only be one complaint, and that is that the dialogue and soft music could scarcely be heard beyond the center of the gardens, but that will be immediately remedied by the erection of a sounding board in the gardens. "The Chimes of Normandy" will be repeated every evening this week.

UHRIG'S CAVE.

The patronage of the Cave last night was necessarily lessened, but remained enthusiastic and appreciative. "The Passing Regiment" was produced with all the beauty of situation, effects and dialogue. As a comedy it possesses some rare bits of humor, and as presented by Daly's company is exceedingly rich in finish. It will be repeated to-night. Remember the Saturday matinee.

PARK THEATER.

The Park had an excellent audience last night, and the Bijou English Opera Company produced "The Mascot" with splendid effect. The people of the Park locality are beginning to show their appreciation of the management and enterprise of Mr. Collins.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION.

The Third Day's Session—Debate on the Sub-List.

The proceedings of the third day's session of the International Typographical Union were of a very interesting character. After roll call and the adoption of the reports of the Committee on Appeals and Credentials the resolution of Mr. Deck, of Indianapolis, which was offered yesterday, was called up for consideration. The resolution was for the abolishment of "sub-lists" in all offices. It may be well to explain that a sub-list in a newspaper printing office is a list of printers not regularly employed who are given work as opportunity offers in preference to promiscuous applicants. The resolution of Mr. Deck was referred to the Committee on Subordinate Unions, who this morning reported the resolution back with the recommendation that sub-lists be abolished wherever practicable. A motion to strike out the word "practicable" evoked considerable discussion. Some of the speeches were of unusual excellence. This statement is particularly true of the effort of Mr. Haldeman, of Philadelphia. Speaking to the motion, Mr. Haldeman referred to the well-known fact that the printers of this country are noted for their generosity. He thought the question should be left for settlement with the subbordinate unions respectiveir. He advocated the fusion of the interests of capital and labor.

"Unless we can harmonize the relations between employers and workmen," said Mr. Haldeman, "trades-unionism is a failure. Strikes are the bane of the workingmen of this country. They are justifiable only in extreme cases. When capital strikes first, as was the case when the Philadelphia Press closed its doors against its printers without notice, labor should strike back, and with all its might." Mr. Haldeman's remarks were delivered with considerable elocutionary brilliancy and were followed with close attention by his fellow-members. He was followed by almost every member present, and the discussion, although at times considerably vigorous, never ceased to be good natured. The Typographical Union, as a representative body, is as fine a collection of intelligent and good natured men as ever met together for the consideration of mutual interests. The knowledge of the rules of debate and the readiness of every speaker to grasp the point under immediate consideration, would have done credit to any legislative body in the country, and the proceedings of this morning were altogether more decorous and business-like than the sessions of most State Legislatures usually are. The matter was after many ballots finally referred to subordinate unions to dispose of as might seem most appropriate.

The

Winnipeg, Manitoba, No. 191. Cedar Rapids, Iowa, No. 192. Laramie City, Wyoming Territory, No. 193. Joliet, Ill., No. 194. Las Vegas, N. M., No. 195. St. Paul, Minn., No. 30. Keokuk, Ia., No. 68. The charter of Dallas, Tex., Union, No. 173, was surrendered in February, 1882. Cause assigned—"inability to secure a quorum at the meetings."

The charters of Meadville, Pa., Oil City, Pa., and Cumberland, Md., have also been returned, no cause for their return being given.

The session adjourned at a quarter of 1 o'clock and proceeded in a body to the printing office of the Globe-Democrat to inspect the new printing press. This evening the members will attend the performance of Rip Van Winkle by Mr. Robert McWade at the People's Theater. The afternoon was passed on a visit to the St. Louis type foundry.

CARONDELET JOTTINGS.

Attempt at Suicide—Other News Items in the Suburb.

About 5 o'clock this morning Wm. Clues, a farmer residing in Jefferson county, about twelve miles from Carondelet, came to the conclusion that life was not worth living, and, placing a loaded revolver to his forehead pulled the trigger. The bullet entered directly over the right eye, glancing upward and embedding itself near the edge of the scalp. Clues weakened after the shot was fired, and throwing the revolver aside hurried in search of a physician. Bleeding and almost exhausted he arrived at Dr. Max Starkloff's office this morning and had the bullet cut out. Clues claimed at first the shooting was accidental, but afterwards admitted that he tried to end his life. He implored the physician not to inform his wife lest she might finish the work which he undertook but did not have the courage to execute.

A. Rapp was engaged in unloading lumber from cars at the foot of Stein street this morning, when he fell from a box-car to the track, breaking the ligamentis of the left knee. Dr. Starkloff is in attendance.

James Connors was found suffering from various complicated diseases on an open lot near the Iron Mountain tracks and Ellwood street this morning. An ambulance was telegraphed for and Connors sent to the City Hospital.

THE money will be cheerfully refunded by Wilson Bros. & Boyd (the leading Men's Furnishers of America) on any article purchased of them that is not just what they represent it to be.

The Grady Appeal.

The decision of the Court of Appeals in the case of Grady, remanded to the Criminal Court yesterday, it was supposed, would cut an important figure in the gambling cases on the docket. In this special case an indictment found by the first grand jury was lost by the foreman. A new charge was made by the next inquest by copying the first indictment. Mr. Cornelius McBride appealed on the ground that the indictment on which the defendant was tried was found without evidence. A similar difficulty happened when the fifty-three gambling cases, the first made, were brought before the grand jury and the bills ignored. The next grand jury returned the indictments, but it is now said it was on evidence, and the gamblers have no footing here. It was thought that the indictments were based on the evidence taken by the first jury, but this is apparently not the case. Mr. McDonald claims that each indictment has been found on evidence; none are copies.

THE THREAD MONOPOLY.

How the Sewing Girls are Ground Down for the Benefit of Capitalists.

From the New York Times.

Of the 25,000,000 dozens of spools of cotton thread estimated to be sold in this country each year, less than 700,000, or not one spool in thirty, are imported. The stock of the principal really American company engaged in the business is to-day worth more than three times its face value, and is not obtainable at that. It pas for many years paid as high as 20 per cent in dividends annually, and laid aside enough in reserve or in the extension of its works to triple the value of the stock. It certainly cannot be said to be in a struggling condition, or to stand in need of a special tax to shut out foreign competition. So far as that tax does act in that way it is a direct robbery of the consumer for the benefit of a small number of wealthy persons. It is, as most protective taxes are, a tax not on capital for the benefit of labor, but on labor for the benefit of capital. Nothing more grossly despotic, unfair and oppressive is known in the history of American taxation. Nothing so bad is known outside of Mexico and Turkey.

Before the war the sewing woman bought her thread for 4 cents a spool. She now has to pay 25 per cent more for it. Her wages are but little, if any, greater; her food and rent are appreciably higher. The law, in the impudent pretense of protecting American industry, aids wealthy capitalists, whose profits are very great, to exact from this sewing woman an increase of one-fourth in the cost of an absolutely necessary article of her calling. She is utterly helpless to protect herself. If she should undertake to do so she would only lose the frail hold she has on any means of living. And the tax is so ingeniously contrived that she cannot even know that she is helping pay it. She can only know that the conditions of life are very hard; that the bread with hunger and cold is bitter and sometimes vain; that a hundred hands as eager and feeble as hers are grasping at the wretched pittance she can earn. But the men who sit in Congress, the men who may act on the Tariff Commission and the men who make American thread know, or ought to know, that of the burden which rests on the shoulders of the sewing woman, the outrageous duty of 78¾ per cent on foreign thread imposes its share. They know, or ought to know, that the retention of the duty is more than a blunder in fiscal policy; it is a cruel, greedy, detestable violation of the laws of justice and humanity.

A Pious Kleptomaniac.

From the London Globe.

At the Bristol Police Court yesterday Georgina Chapman, of Cheltenham, a young lady stated to be highly connected, was charged with obtaining by false pretenses £3 from Mr. Francis Sturge and £2 from Mr. Wilberforce Tribe. She represented to Mr. Tribe that her pocket had been picked at Chester Station while returning from North Wall, and to Mr. Sturge that while at Bristol Railway Station her pocket, with a purse containing £20, had been cut from her dress, and that after staying at the Royal Talbot Hotel, Bristol, she was unable to pay her bill. The police ascertained that instead of stopping in the name of Gertrude Neville at the Talbot Hotel, she had for the past month been staying at the home of a sisterhood attached to one of the parish churches in Bristol, and had been industriously visiting the poor and administering to the sick. She had purchased many things for the poor, to whom she distributed them; but when desired to settle the tradesman's account she referred him to her solicitor. The vicar of the church stated that she was introduced to the home in his absence on the Continent. She had been most industrious in her ministration to the poor, and she behaved in a most ladylike manner while at the home, co-operating with the sisters. The prisoner's solicitor, Mr. Cheeshyre, of Cheltenham, stated that her mind was affected; all the goods she obtained in this way she gave to the poor and needy. The magistrates said they thought it their duty to commit her for trial, and she was removed in custody.

Our Horrible Cigarettes.

Old Tobacconist in Philadelphia Times.

Ninety per cent. of the cigarettes sold are of American manufacture and highly opiated. Other branches of our trade are injured by adulteration. Chewing tobacco is steeped in a poisonous preparation of logwood to make it of a light color, and the consumer sacrifices his health in order to be pleased by a particular tint. Pipe tobacco they also like of a light color and so we use yellow ochre liberally. Smokers want it, they're bound to have it, and so we're bound to supply it. We flavor with wintergreen, which I don't suppose does them any good. As for cigars the majority are flavored with valerian and contain liberal doses of narcotics. Fine cut chewing tobacco seems to be the rage now among people well off. It is more esthetic. It contains plenty of artistic-sounding stuff such as copperas. Liquorice is also thrown in, but of course that is harmless. Men who chew tobacco often suffer with sore mouths. These are caused by bad drugs being put along with other rubbish into the cake. The popular taste is in favor of being stupefied with chloral or opium, and if we didn't live up to it we should get left. It might interest you to know that ladies have a separate and distinct way of chewing. They 'dip' Scotch snuff, which is the technical term for placing it inside their cheeks or under their tongues. A great many of them smoke, too, and chiefly cigarettes. I would rather see them smoke cigars."

A crop report of C. A. King & Co., Toledo, under date of June 5, says: "The continued wet weather did but little damage to winter wheat, except on low lands to delay harvest. Our reports received past five days show as follows: Condition of winter wheat—Kansas, 131 excellent, 6 fair, 1 poor; Missouri, 80 excellent, 2 fair, 1 poor; Illinois, 130 excellent, 42 fair, 7 poor, 8 half crop; Ohio, 90 excellent, 25 fair, 18 poor, 10 half-crop; Indiana, 43 excellent, 24 fair, 4 poor, 2 half crop. Harvest commences—Kansas, 77 by June 15, 35 by June 30, 1 by July 10; Missouri, 30 by June 16, 38 by June 20, 5 by July 10; Illinois, 31 by June 15, 116 by June 30, 31 by July 10, 6 after July 10; Ohio, 3 by June 15, 54 by June 30, 78 by July 10; Ohio, 3 by June 15, 54 by June 30, 78 by July 10, 9 after July 10; Indiana, 1 by June 15, 44 by June 30, 26 by July 10, 5 after July 10. Our spring wheat reports, while not very numerous, cover nearly as many counties, and generally report condition better than a year ago. The acreage is not materially changed; some of the old States show decrease while Dakota reports large increase, mostly on virgin soil. Corn reports give crop backward, but large increase in acreage in Kansas and Wisconsin, and in other States where acreage was completed before the recent rains."—Harvesting is going on vigorously in Southern Illinois and Missouri, and with a continuance of the present magnificent weather for another week new wheat from those sections will be arriving here, the condition of which should be good with this bright drying weather.—Increased receipts of corn are looked for shortly, as the country roads are drying rapidly under the influence of a bright sun and warmer temperature.—It has been currently reported that the wheat crop in Spain was a failure. In order to learn whether this was true or not, Messrs. Mauntel, Bulte & Co. wrote their correspondent in London, and received in answer that, "according to official reports, the cereal crop in four provinces of Spain is threatened with failure, while in 41 other provinces there are good prospects of a satisfactory harvest since the recent rains."—There is talk of a "corner" in June wheat in this market. This was brought out by the recent sharp advance in cash and June, and that was caused by frightened shorts covering their contracts for this month, as they were afraid the receipts of old wheat would continue light, that new wheat would not commence moving in freely enough to influence the market this month and the longs take advantage of the insignificant offerings to play hob with the shorts.—No. 2 spring for July in Chicago is openly believed to be cornered, and it is suspected that the clique contemplate running the deal into No. 2 regular, believing they can get out a big line of shorts and squeeze considerable money out before the receipts become burdensome. The intention of the clique in spring wheat is said to be to squeeze the short sellers into settling at as high prices as possible, retaining all the while the cash property so that those who default will do so from necessity, and thus, if the settling price fixed upon is an unprofitable one for the clique, they will simply scratch the trades.—The first new wheat of Missouri growth was received to day by Humphrey, Malone & Blake. The lot consisted of 20 sacks from Point Pleasant, Mo., and was nice-looking, bright and fair-sized berry, but soft and rather damp.

The stock of No. 2 red in store here is running down rapidly. It is stated that Milwaukee parties will move out 75,000 bu this week, and that by Saturday night there will not be 25,000 bu of this grade in stock here.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

Flour—Choice and fancy remain firm, as they were scarce and wanted, but low grades show no improvement, ruling dull and unchanged in value.

Wheat—Higher. Cash grades scarce and very stiff, with an urgent milling demand, that took nearly everything offered, including 10,000 bu. No. 2 red. Futures opened weak, but sharp advances elsewhere and the strength shown by cash strengthened the market, though this was felt mainly by the near-by options, June closing 1⅛c and July ⅜c higher, while August and October were up ⅜c and year 3-16c and September unchanged from yesterday's close.

Corn higher for cash again, with a steady and active demand on order account for all grades and also samples, while for white-mixed there was a milling inquiry and No. 2 mixed also bought by speculators. Futures were weak and lower early, but advanced on encouraging advices later; the market was a very tame one, few being inclined to trade, and the close was at ⅛c advance for June and year, and ⅛c for October, ⅛c lower for July and ⅛c for August, while September was the same as yesterday's close.

Oats—Held firmly for cash, as the supply was very light, but the demand was small and buyers rather indifferent, so that no advance could be obtained. Futures bettered on higher markets elsewhere, an urgent demand from shorts for June advancing it 1⅛c, while July closed ⅛c up, and August and year ⅛c better.

Hay—Steady and quiet. Demand moderate, coming entirely from local feeders, as order buyers were out.

Millfeed—Dull and weaker.

Provisions show the same strength, as telegraphic advices were encouraging and holders felt still. The tendency of values was upward, sellers of dry salt asking an advance, and bacon showing a gain in price.

Highwines steady, and selling readily,—bbls. at $1 15. Cincinnati $1 13; Chicago $1 15; Peoria $1 13.

Lead—While dull and but little changing hands, is steady if not really firm, holders at any rate exhibiting a good deal of stiffness in their demands. Hard sells quietly at $4 30 and soft cannot be purchased at anything below $4 50. Spelter rules dull at about 5⅛@5⅜c.

RIVER NEWS.

THE Spread Eagle leaves for Grafton at 3 p. m.

THE punctual Dora leaves at 4 p. m. for Clarksville. Lamont, master, Ed. Murphy, clerk.

THE Gem City, of memorable record, leaves for Keokuk at 4 p. m. to-day. Burke commands.

THE City of Cairo, Capt. George Vickers, will be the Vicksburg Anchor Line boat for to-morrow evening.

THE War Eagle got away for St. Paul last evening with a big trip. She is one of the best boats on the river.

CAPTS. J. S. KAIL and Jas. A. Henderson, of Pittsburg, Pa., were on 'Change yesterday and left for home last evening.

THE river falls slowly. There is 27 feet of water by the gauge to-day. All the upper streams are also in good stage.

THE David R. Powell will arrive from Kansas City Friday and leave again Saturday. R. J. Whitlege commands the Powell.

THE Anchor Line boats take freight and passengers to all points on the Tennessee and Cumberland Rivers; also to Cairo and Paducah.

THE Diamond Joe line will dispatch the neat steamer Josephine for St. Paul this evening. Wm. Boland is the manager of this passenger packet.

THE harbor boat is washing off the Levee as fast as the water falls and the sediment appears. Probably the cleanest street in the city is Front street.

THE old, reliable Naples and Peoria Packet Company will send the side-wheel Calhoun to Peoria at 4 p. m. Gray and Watts are at the head of departments.

THIS is departing-day for the New Orleans Anchor Line packets, and the City of Baton Rouge, Capt. H. E. Bixby, leaves at 5 p. m. She has no superior on the river.

THERE is a quiet and unassuming gentleman by the name of Knight who is making friends with shippers. He is the agent of a Paducah packet that is trying to make a living in trade.

THE Centennial, the largest steamer on the Upper Mississippi, takes her departure for St. Paul to-morrow evening. Thos. L. Davidson has charge and Geo. Marsh presides in the office. Secure your room early.

THE delightful weather is having a beneficial effect on business, as far at least as passenger travel is concerned on the upper rivers. It is also ripening the crops and proving of inestimable value in many other respects.

THE name of Commodore E. W. Gould, of St. Louis, is being urged by many of the Eastern journals for the position of Inspector-General of steamboats. A better selection for the place could not be made, and it is to be hoped the commodore will receive this appointment.

THE big Joe B. Williams went into New Orleans last trip with a tow of twenty-nine pieces, containing 125,000 tons of coal. The tow was 175 feet long and forty feet wide. To transport this coal by rail would require 25,000 flat cars with a power of 1,250 locomotives, which, if strung out, would reach nearly from New Orleans to Baton Rouge. The steamer J. B. Williams is, without any exceptions, one of the most powerful tow boats in the country. This immense tow is not the largest she has taken down by a great many barges.

CAPT. C. A. DRAVO, an old-time commander on our waters, who retired from the river ten years ago, and who is now engaged in the banking business in Pittsburg, is visiting Cincinnati, the guest of Capt. George W. Neare. Capt. Dravo is hale and hearty, and will visit his old friends in marine circles and on 'Change to day, and leave for Pittsburg to-night by rail. Capt. Dravo formerly commanded the St. Cloud, Mariner, Niagara, Telegraph, Great Republic, St. Charles and other fine steamers.—[Cincinnati Commercial.

A Roustabout's Wages.

Marshall Scott is a colored roustabout on the Fanny Taylor. He was paid $8 50 wages due him a few days since, and he now charges Henry Johnson, the colored captain of the watch on the same steamer, of unlawfully appropriating the amount to his own use. He said to the Prosecuting Attorney that just after he had been paid Johnson had grabbed the money from his hand and started off with it. A warrant was sworn out for larceny and Johnson jailed.

REFEREE'S REPORT.

The Fair Association Election Contest.

Statement of Facts Establishing the Defeat of the Green Ticket and Election of the Citizens' Ticket.

Ex-Gov. Thos. C. Reynolds, referee in the case of the Fair Directory contest, came into Judge Boyle's court this morning with a heavy budget of figures presenting voluminously his report on the votes cast at the election in January last. The statement is too exhaustive for publication, but the substance is gathered from a condensation carefully prepared by the referee, which states the facts and figures in a few lines. It is the result of a protracted hearing before the referee upon the special facts in dispute concerning the last election for Fair Directors. Referee Reynolds finds that if the court rejects the votes cast in respect of shares transferred within less than thirty days of the election the Ferguson and Hunt Citizens' Ticket was elected by a large majority—200. If the court should admit those votes the result of the election would depend on the court's decision with regard to the proxy votes. If all the proxy votes should be admitted then the Ferguson and Hunt Citizens' Ticket was elected. If the court should exclude forty-seven proxy votes which the referee ruled out on the ground that the execution of those proxies was not legally proven, the election would result as follows:

D. P. Rowland, Green ticket; P. C. Tansey, both tickets; Edwin Harrison, both tickets; Samuel Dodd, both tickets, Henry L. Dousman, both tickets; Wm. H. Scudder, Hunt ticket; Wm. A. Hargaline, Hunt ticket; E. Meier, Hunt ticket; E. O. Stanard, Hunt ticket; D. K. Ferguson, Hunt ticket; Julius S. Walsh, Green ticket; Chas. P. Chouteau, Hunt ticket; E. C. Simmons, Hunt ticket; Miles Seils, Hunt ticket; J. R. Lionberger, Hunt ticket; Charles L. Hunt, Hunt ticket; E. C. Lackland, Hunt ticket; David Clarkson, Green ticket; J. N. Booth, Hunt ticket; A. B. Ewing, Green ticket; Ed. Martin, Green ticket.

If cumulative votes should be accounted, Mr. Filley would take the place of the last named on the list above.

The following list presents the grand total of votes cast for the gentlemen on each ticket, but it should be remembered that some figured on both tickets:

THE CITIZENS' TICKET.

D. K. Ferguson, 609; Chas. P. Chouteau, 603; Chas L. Hunt, 588; Edwin Harrison, 626; Ed. Manny, 580; E. Meier, 590; E. C. Lackland, 589; E. C. Simmons, 590; Miles Seils, 592; J. R. Lionberger, 592; H. L. Dousman, 620; W. A. Hargaline, 595; Joseph D. Lucas, 571; E. O. Stanard, 593; J. N. Booth, 585; Wm. H. Scudder, 596; Dr. C. A. Todd, 579; S. M. Dodd, 615; Thos. E. Tutt, 583; R. P. Tansey, 466; C. B. Greeley, 572.

THE GREEN TICKET.

A. B. Pendleton, 582; Julius S. Walsh, 607; Charles Green, 579; J. C. Edwards, 570; R. P. Tansey, 540; Johnston Beggs, 580, Moses Fraley, 570; Geo. Bain, 570; David Clarkson, 586; J. G. Prather, 577; Edward Martin, 585; John J. Menges, 569; Edwin Harrison, 540; P. P. Rowland, 59 : H. L. Dousman, 540; Jno. Scullin, 570; S. M. Dodd, 540; Ed. Filley, 581; A. B. Ewing, 585; Wm. W. Withnell, 568; James S. Farrar, 564.

John W. Overall and Chas. M. Napton, representing the Citizens' ticket, as soon as Gov. Reynolds had filed his report, asked the court to set a day for hearing arguments upon the questions of law involved in the controversy.

Judge Madill, representing the Green ticket, who was attending the Kookuk packet case, desired time on account of the absence of Mr. Taussig.

Mr. Overall pressed for an early hearing and disposition of the case. The courts would soon adjourn for the summer, and if the case went over it could not be heard until October, after the annual fair. This would be prejudicial to the stockholders' interests.

Judge Boyle thought that counsel ought to be ready to argue the law questions by Monday week, and they would be heard that day.

POLICE COURT CASES.

Thomas Brooks Fined for Not Demolishing a Man.

Eliza Smith, a colored damsel, was arraigned before Judge Jecko this morning on a charge of disturbing the peace. She was dressed in picnic toggery and faded flowers. The evidence against her was that at 3 o'clock this morning Eliza was found sleeping on a bench in Concordia Park, where a picnic was given yesterday. The jolly party became hilarious, refused to pay for the drinks, and in consequence the lights were put out. Eliza had taken more than she was accustomed to, and fell asleep on the bench. She was awakened by the watchman's assistance, and here the accounts diverge. He said she whipped out a knife and cut him. She said he was not behaving as a gentleman should and took his knife out to scare her. She said she "screamed" for help but there was no one heard her. The cuts, she said, were the result of the man's carelessness. Eliza was assessed $50.

Thomas Brooks stepped out next to receive his rations of justice. In his own defense he said: "Mr. Stone, this hathen, who lives at No. 11 North Levee, has a spite agin me."

"Did you call him bad names?"

"I don't use bad efriets to even a hathen, your Honor."

"Did you strike him?"

"Not until he cocked up his little leg to kick me, but it was too short, and then I slapped his ugly face."

"Did you close your hand?"

"If I did, your Honor, there wouldn't be a grease spot of the little hathen left."

Tom was fined $5 for his forbearance.

Texas Topics.

Geo. H. Kelley, clerk of the County Court, Poplar Bluff, Mo., returned this morning from Austin, Tex. He had decided to remove to Texas, but circumstances changed his determination and he will remain in this State. Mr. Kelley has succeeded in purchasing back the Poplar Bluff Citizen, a newspaper he once owned, and will again enter the field of journalism. He states that the people of Texas are building a new State-house to cost $5,000,000, and that work is progressing rapidly, although the contractors have six years in which to complete the building. It will have a frontage of 661 feet and will be the largest and handsomest State building in the country. Mr. Kelley is fearful that the Democrats of Texas will have tough work during the next campaign, for the party is divided into Roberts and anti-Roberts factions, while the Republicans, Greenbackers, Independents and Communists are rapidly effecting a coalition. The crops are beyond precedent in their promise. Wheat and corn are abundant and in good condition, and the Texas farmers only fear that they will not have sufficient room to stack their grain.

Coroner's Inquests.

The Coroner held inquests on the following bodies to-day: Jacob Waibel, the nine-months-old son of Jacob Waibel, died suddenly yesterday at No. 2122 Carondelet avenue and the Coroner was notified. It was a case of infantile convulsions, and a verdict was rendered accordingly.

Martha Jane Reed, the 40-year-old maiden lady who committed suicide yesterday, at No. 304½ South Seventh street yesterday had an inquest held on her body this morning. A verdict of death by suicide was rendered by the Coroner.

An inquest was held on the remains of Theodore Janreis, the Bohemian, who committed suicide by shooting himself in the head yesterday evening. He was 44 years old and a zinc worker by trade. The Coroner gave a verdict of death by suicide.

There were six bodies buried from the Morgue this morning in the Potter's Field by the city. Two were infants and four were grown men taken from the river, who were buried unidentified.

A LITTLE INNOCENT GAMBLING.

How It Brought Certain Facts to Light and Demonstrated That There Were Safer Investments Than Buying Pools at the Races.

A somewhat novel wager was entered into yesterday at the race track. A gentleman wearing a nobby-cut satin-lined sack suit of approved style and finish attracted a good deal of attention by his lavish use of money, betting freely on the favorites, buying pools, etc. Luck seemed to attend him, and Dame Fortune smiled. At the close of the races, while conversing with a group of friends, the inquiry was put, "Where did you get the tony suit?" and bets were freely indulged in that no one could name the maker and price. Our tony gent smiled serenely, took all the bets he could get on the cost of the suit, the lowest guess being $35, and when he informed his friends that it was not made by any tailor, but purchased at Famous sacrifice sale for $16 50, they all winked and remarked in chorus, "Too thin."

A representative of the daily press happening to overhear the wager made up his mind to investigate for his own satisfaction the truth of the gentleman's statement. So, accordingly, at the conclusion of the races, he visited the famous outfitting house on Fifth and Morgan and undertook a tour through their magnificently lighted clothing department. It was a revelation to him. He found suits of the most elegant description, and made of the finest domestic and imported woolens, cut and trimmed equal to custom work—suits worth $30 and $35; suits that made to order could not be produced for less than $45 being sacrificed at $15 and $16 50. Feeling a curiosity to investigate further, he was shown all-wool business suits good enough for any gentleman to wear being sold for $5, and when the accommodating usher called his attention to a good suit of mixed cassimere at $3 75, he, metaphorically speaking, "threw up the sponge," feeling for once that if truth could be really stranger than fiction, the facts might be fully carried out in a visit to the great sacrifice sale at Famous this week.

DIAMOND CHIPS.

The Baltimores will play the Browns on Sunday next.

The Athletics now lead in the American Association games.

This afternoon the St. Louis Standards and the Alleghenies are playing at Sportsmen's Park, Grand avenue.

To-morrow the fifth game of the series between the St. Louis Browns and the Alleghenies of Pittsburg will be played at Sportsmen's Park. The visitors find Schappert so much to their liking that it is probable he will not pitch any more in the series, and the work will devolve upon McGinnis and Sullivan, as Fusselbach is badly used up by "Shap's" wild delivery. The Browns' bad defeat of yesterday will put them in to-morrow's game with a determination to put their best feet forward and score another victory from the visitors. They should certainly wipe out the bad drubbing they received on Tuesday.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

John Salsbury, a young lad of about twelve years, was playing near the bridge approach, when a switch engine ran over his foot, breaking his leg above the ankle and severely crushing the foot.

John Claxton, a young man employed as brakeman on the Chicago and Alton Road, was engaged in coupling freight cars when caught between the engine and a box car. The young man was severely bruised about the ribs, but Dr. Winton pronounces his injuries not serious.

John Brady and John Sullivan, both residents of the First Ward, indulged in a friendly wrestle for the amusement of their friends last evening. Sullivan kicked Brady in the left leg, breaking it below the knee. The accident was unintentional, as neither party was angry. Dr. Winton set the broken leg.

The annual examination of the public schools commenced yesterday at the Douglas School on the Island. Superintendent McQuilken will conduct the examinations according to the following programme: Douglas School June 6 and 7, Franklin School June 8 and 9; Broadway June 12 and 13 and morning of 14; Middle School evening of 14, 15 and 16; Upper School 19, 20 and 21; Eighth Street School 22, and Colored School 23.

Superintendent McQuilken has decided that the election held last August, when the people voted for a colored school, is illegal and cannot be acted upon. At to-night's meeting of the School Board two or more sites for a colored school will be selected by the board and petitions drawn up to be presented to the voters of the School District for signature. The petition, if signed by a majority of the legal voters, will decide where the school will be located, and it is understood that the members will act in harmony at to-night's meeting.

About 6:30 last evening Mr. Melvin, residing in the Fourth Ward, was passing through one of the railroad yards, when a gang of roughs attacked and beat him in the most brutal manner. One of the roughs used a knife and almost severed the left ear from the face. Dr. Winton was summoned and found the left side of the face lacerated and the eye almost gouged from the socket. The ribs were discolored from the effects of severe kicking, and the patient complained of internal pains. Mr. Melvin recognized one of his assailants, and will swear out a warrant this afternoon.

BOATING NOTES.

A number of attractive little regatta badges have been printed for distribution among children.

The celebrated Excelsior double-scull crew of Detroit, Mich., have applied for entrance to the free-for-all double-scull at the regatta.

Grand stand tickets for subscribers to the regatta fund can be obtained by subscribers, free of charge, by applying to Mr. J. A. St. John, 15 North Third street.

Trains now leave the Union Depot three times daily for the lake. The Modoc crews, taking advantage of their nearness to the course, have left their sculls permanently at the lake for the present.

On the evening of the 21st an entertainment will be given at the Pickwick Theater under the auspices of the Modoc Rowing Club. The Hess Opera Company will perform a new opera of their repertoire on this occasion.

The two single sculls belonging to Trickett, which he authorized Mr. St. John to sell, are lying at the Modoc boat-house. Any person wishing to inspect them with a view of purchasing should visit Mr. St. John. One is a paper shell made by Waters, of Troy, N. Y., and the other a wooden one by Warren, of Toronto.

A prominent sporting gentleman received a letter this morning from Mr. L. B. Glover, of Chicago, Secretary of the Mississippi Valley Rowing Association and President of the Farragut Boat Club of that city. He said the bad condition of the weather had interfered greatly with training. He also stated that the Farraguts would be more fully represented at the regatta this season than ever before.

The free-for-all single scull race will without doubt be one of the most interesting races upon the regatta programme. Mr. R. G. Musgrave of New Orleans and Frank E. Holmes of Pawtucket, R. I., are the most prominent scullers who have entered up to the present date. The former gentleman is a very fast sculler, while the latter is the champion amateur of the United States. These gentlemen have never met before, and though they may not have the race all their own way, they will undoubtedly be the central figures.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCES.

Two Men Leave Their Home and Have Not Since Been Heard From.

Mysterious disappearances are becoming more frequent and numerous than the authorities care to admit. Another batch is reported this morning and search will be immediately instituted, but it is rather singular that so many women, men and children are sinking into obscurity without apparent cause, and investigations are certainly in order.

David Rowland, of No. 2949 Easton avenue, is lost. He is 45 years old and was last seen by his friends day before yesterday. When he went away from his home the last time he wore a dark cassimere suit and stiff hat. He is five feet eight inches tall, dark complexion, hair and eyes. It is feared that he has met with foul play, as he had no incentive for suicide.

Information is likewise wanted of Chris. Vogel, who left this city on the 17th of April to go to Chicago for work, since which time he has not been heard from, and his wife is alarmed, fearing the worst may have befallen him. Vogel is 47 years of age, five feet and nine inches high, gray eyes, black hair and mustache, and has small-pox marks about his nose. His wife, Margaret Vogel, resides at 2424 Biddle street, is very poor, and has three children to support. She will gladly receive any information concerning her husband.

"THESE CASES MUST GO TO TRIAL."

Mutterings of Circuit Attorney Harris—He is on the Road to Recovery.

Circuit Attorney Harris is improving steadily and very rapidly, considering the condition to which he was reduced. Last night Mr. Charles F. Joy and Marshall F. McDonald sat up with him. About 9 o'clock he went to sleep and had six hours' rest, after which he took refreshments and dozed away until 6 o'clock this morning, when he again enjoyed a refreshing nap. Dr. Johnson now says that, unless some unforeseen and unexpected difficulty arises, Mr. Harris is on the road to health and will quickly recover. During his wanderings his mind is bent on the business of the office of Circuit Attorney, and several times he was heard to say with emphasis that "these cases must go to trial." Messrs. Joy and McDonald will attend him every night. His present promising condition is due to the fact that no morphine has been given him. When he was nervously prostrated he was continually dosed with this drug. The result was that the stomach failed to appropriate and assimilate the nourishment administered. As soon as this was removed a complete change took place, since which every indication of a rapid recovery has been discerned.

Hotel Wedding.

A quiet little wedding occurred this morning at the Lindell Hotel. The high contracting parties were Mr. John Wall, of Waterloo, Ill., and Miss Kate Liddy, of Red Bud, Ill., who were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Father J. McCaffrey, of St. Patrick's Church. The attendants were Mr. James Caniff and Miss Maggie Liddy. The bride was elegantly attired in olive green twilled silk, made en panier and trimmed with iridescent lace. The only guests were Mr. Van Dillon and daughter and Miss Fash, of this city, with Daniel Liddy, of Red Bud. At 9 o'clock a delightful breakfast was served to the wedding party in the club rooms of the hotel.

The Puddlers' Strike.

The situation in St. Louis remains unchanged. It is possible that important news from the conference of mill owners which takes place at the rooms of the Western Association Pittsburg this morning, will reach the city before night. What the result of the conference will be cannot now be determined, but unless the local mill proprietors are greatly mistaken it will not be an unconditional surrender to the strikers.
